CRASH, SHOTS CAUSE ARREST OF POLICEMAN

Leroy Batchelor, 27, Is Held in Collision; Drinking, Claim.

ACCUSED OF FIRING AT FATHER OF WIFE

Recently Demoted Precinct Detective Is Suspended; Gun Found Empty.

As a sensational aftermath to an attempted reconciliation with his estranged wife, Policeman Leroy Batchelor, who only a month ago was demoted from his position as a detective at the Fourteenth precinct, was arrested last night on a charge of reckless driving, and was immediately suspended by Lieut. W. H. Carlin, of the First precinct.

In addition to the reckless driving charge Batchelor is being held as a fugitive from justice on request of Sheriff Howard Fields, of Arlington county, who filed the complaint upon request of Batchelor's father-in-law, Lieut. Edward T. Harney, commanding officer of the Harbor Precinct.

Batchelor, who is 27 years old, and who lives on Fifteenth street northwest, near Fuller street, is alleged to have fired five shots at Lieut. Harney earlier in the night, after the latter had refused to let him see his wife, Margaret. He was ordered away from the Harney home in Alcova Heights, Va., Lieut. Harney said.

Shots Fired at Home.

After closing the door to his son-in-law, Lieut. Harney, a veteran of 28 years on the "force," walked into his dining room, the front of which has a large French door. His entrance staccato of shots.

into the room was greeted by a rapid

Five slugs pierced the door, two of them grazing Lieut. Harney's face. Four of them were later found embedded in the plastering and are being held as evidence.

Through th shattered glass, Lieut. Harney declared he saw Batchelor rush to his waiting machine and drive away in the direction of Washington. The lieutenant notified the Washington police and a "confidential" lookout was sent out for the policeman.

Police machines had scarcely ticked off the lookout before Batchelor's machine was reported in a collision on Fourteenth street, near B street northwest. There, police say, it had crashed into a machine driven by William P. Neville, 44 years old, of 3801 Seventh street northwest, overturning it.

Arested After Collision.

Miss Margaret Nash, 30 years old, of 736 Twenty-second street northwest, a passenger, was badly shaken up, and was taken to Emergency Hospital. Doctors said she was suf-

Epidemic of Colds Hits Quantico Post

Meetings Are Canceled and Schools Closed; Butler Ill.

Although a number of scheduled gatherings have been canceled, as a precautionary measure, authorities at Quantico, Va., said last night that the mild epidemic of colds and grip among marines quartered there has not assumed serious proportions.

More than 100 men have been placed on the sick list since the first case was discovered Saturday. Indoor school classes and motion picture entertainments have been called off in order to prevent the colds from spreading.

Brig. Gen. Smedley Butler, commandant, is one of the victims. He was confined to his quarters yesterday with a slight cold. Col. J. J. Meade, his chief of staff, said that Capt. Reynolds Haden, post medical officer, had termed the general attack a light one. Approximately 2,000 men and officers are quartered at the post. Col. Meade said that cancellation of leaves of absence is not being considered.

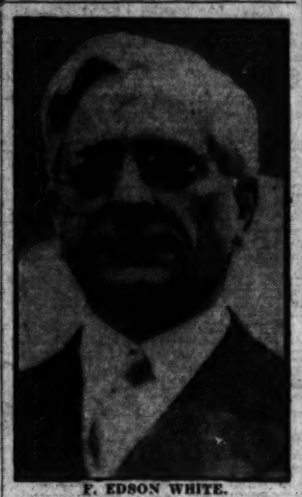
Armour Co. Head Dies In Fall From Window

F. Edson White Sat on Sill to Get Air; Death Held Accidental.



F. EDSON WHITE.

Chicago, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—F. Edson White, 57, president of Armour & Co., was killed tonight by a fall from a bedroom window at his north side home.

A representative of Armour & Co. telephoned the newspapers, after the report of Mr. White's death had been received, asking them to send representatives to the apartment of Philip Armour, a son of the founder, where, he said, "details will be given out."

Mr. White, one of the best known financiers in the Midwest had been president of Armour & Co. since 1923. He likewise was a director of many large banks and was prominent in club circles in New York and Chicago.

He is survived by the widow and two children, Mrs. Gertrude Lillian Spencer and Georgina Spencer White.

The multimillionaire packer came to his death by accident, in the opinion of Coroner P. J. Dwyer, and of P. L. Reed, treasurer of Armour & Co.

Mr. Reed said he had been talking to Mr. White just five minutes before he toppled from the window. At that time Mr. White was sitting on the sill "to get a little air," he explained to Mr. Reed. He was alone in the room at the time of the fall.

Mr. Reed said he had retired from the room, and, returning, found Mr.

OLD JOBS NOT GIVEN TWO IN POWER FIGHT

STAND CHANGE UNLIKELY

(Associated Press.)

Almost all the former employes of the Power Commission were put back to work yesterday, but prominently absent from the list were names of William V. King, chief accountant, and Charles A. Russell, solicitor.

Their dismissal by Chairman Smith and Commissioners Draper and Garsaud, of the new commission, led to the most outstanding difference of opinion between the Senate and President Hoover since the latter took office.

The Senate, after days of debate, during which it was charged Russell and King were dismissed because they opposed the power interests, asked the President to send the names of the new commissioners back for reconsideration. Mr. Hoover flatly declined.

From the attitude of commission members it is not expected Russell and King will get their positions back. Members said action would likely be taken within a month in naming an accountant and solicitor to take their places.

All but two of the employes under civil service were reemployed on a permanent basis, but none of the five executive heads of the commission were chosen.

In addition to the posts held by Russell and King, the other executive posts include general counsel, chief engineer and secretary, once the office held by Frank E. Bonner.

The position of general counsel has been vacant for several months because of death. The present acting chief engineer, Col. M. C. Tyler, was assigned to the former commission by the War Department and is being retained by the present commission while it organizes its force. Two of the minor employes were reappointed upon a temporary basis for 30 days. They were F. W. Griffith, chief clerk of the old commission, and Miss V. M. Crosett, secretray to former Solicitor Russell. No explanation was given for the temporary appointments.

The commission made the permanent appointmnets. Chairman Smith said, to end uncertainty in the minds of civil service employes, all of whom were given 30 days of temporary employment when the commission took over its duties.

The action was taken by four members, as Commissioner McNinch was absent because of illness. Commissioner Williamson said McNinch had approved the plans.

CATTLE IN ARKANSAS FACING STARVATION

Animal Situation Now More Acute Than Human, Says Red Cross Doctor.

(Associated Press.)

Word that thousands of mules and cattle would die of starvation in Arkansas, unless feed is furnished at once, came yesterday to the Red Cross.

In making public information telegraphed by Dr. William Dekleine from Arkansas, the Red Cross said the final enactment of the feed and seed loan measure came at an opportune time. Dr. Dekleine, national medical director of the organization, was sent into the drought State to report conditions there.

"The feed situation for animals is even more critical than for humans," Dr. Dekleine said. "In one small section of one county we had verified reports of some twenty dead mules. I personally saw four of them."

All but nine of the 75 counties of Arkansas and one-third the area of Kentucky were said to be receiving food from the Red Cross. These two States were hardest hit, but the distress had extended to 383 counties in 21 States.

Chairman John Barton Payne announced that 405,000 persons are now being cared for. Cash grants, he said, have totaled $619,781.80, and total expenditures for all types of aid, $1,352,837.54.

Fearing increasing illness with winter weather, Judge Payne dispatched the national medical director to Arkansas first, with instructions to go into all the other critical drought centers as rapidly as possible.

Dr. Dekleine's first health report receive was that conditions in Arkansas had been good because of exceptionally open weather, but that if the cold weather which descended yesterday should continue very long the health situation "may become very serious."

Plenty of good nourishing food and warm clothes are needed "above everything else in this critical situation," he said, adding that the Red Cross chapters have been providing pure powdered yeast for control of pellagra and medicines for the sick.

"Physicians everywhere are giving their services most willingly where necessary," Dr. Dekleine said.

From Kentucky a Red Cross field worker wired:

"Bitter cold intensified suffering of drought stricken farmers in Ken-

HOOVER SIGNS DROUGHT LOAN APPROPRIATION

$45,000,000 for Loans in Buying Feed and Seed Made Available.

$25,000,000 FOOD SUM FIGHT GROWING

Geographical Lines Are Not to Be Considered in Aiding Farmers.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover late yesterday signed the much-disputed drought loan appropriation.

The $45,000,000 becomes immediately available and the machinery already has been set up for loaning it to farmers for buying feed, seed, fertilizer and farm machinery fuel for putting in this year's crop.

Even as the President put the formal finish to the controversy over the measure, lines were stiffening in the Senate for another battle over providing money for food.

Senate leaders opened the way for an immediate decision in their branch upon the Democratic proposal for a $25,000,000 appropriation to the Red Cross for relief work.

Supply Measures Next.

In working out an agreement to vote on the amendment of Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, during consideration of the interior appropriation bills, the bars were opened for consideration of the supply measures which must be cleared away before March 4 if an extra session is to be avoided.

Agreement also was reached to meet an hour earlier today in an effort to speed consideration of the legislative docket, which is filled with appropriation measures.

The Senate also adopted the resolution of Senator Heflin (Democrat), Alabama, requesting the Secretary of Agriculture in the administration of the $45,000,000 loan for drought-stricken farmers not to be bound by geographical lines.

Democrats Are Confident.

Senate Democrats were confident last night of sufficient votes to put tthrough their $25,000,000 relief appropriation.

The coalition of Democrats and Republican Independents is again lining up to battle with President Hoover. The President has taken the position, supported by the House, that the Red Cross can administer all relief needs.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, who is sponsoring the $25,000,000 proposal with Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, sought yesterday to get immediate action.

However, when he asked consent to consider the proposition as an amendment to the Interior Department appropriatoin bill, Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, withdrew that measure.

Later Senator Smoot agreed to the proposition and an early vote on the Robinson amendment was in sight.

Extra Session Threatened.

The contest threatens an extra session of the new Congress in the spring.

The Democratic leader reasserted in the Senate yesterday his readiness to coöperate in passing the appropriation measures. However, he has warned that if the House refuses to give consideration to his proposal he is willing to kill one of the supply measures.

Dr. C. W. Warburton, secretary of the national drought relief committee and director of extension, who will be in direct charge of this branch of relief, said that "without doubt, we will be making loans next week."

Dr. Warburton said in reply to questions that under the language of the resolution passed production

HEFLIN UNEASY AS NYE PLEADS FOR NEW FUND

Alabaman Is Mystified by Maneuvers Against $50,000 Asked.

SENATE FIGHT NEAR ON COMMITTEE'S LIFE

Elections Quiz Group Finds New Enemies to Oppose Further Money.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Tom Heflin sat in his Senate seat, alternately wide-eyed and frowning, yesterday as a lot of tricky maneuvering went on around the Nye committee, to which he has been looking to get his irons out of the fire. Then, when the machinations dawned upon him, he exploded and hit the ceiling in his old form, shouts of Raskob and Raskobism resounding all over the room.

He had been pretty good at this session, comparatively quiet and most considerate of his fellow senators, and particularly the Republicans. Only the other day when he was making a speech Senator Watson, majority leader, asked if he minded stepping aside while Watson brought up another matter, and Tom's ready willingness was so pronounced that observers began asking "What has Tom up his sleeve?"

Election Probe Encouraging.

What he had, of course, was some investigators of the Nye committee down in Alabama looking into Tom's charges that the regular Democrats had stolen the election from him last November, and, what is more, they were sending up reports most encouraging to Tom. Tom always felt that the Republicans owed him some consideration for what he had done, and it developed that his appeal to the Nye committee did not fall upon unsympathetic ears.

When Tom made the appeal the regular Democrats in Alabama joined in, asking the committee to send investigators down by all means, saying they did not want the fair name of their State impunged.

But about a week ago one of the investigators reported to Senator Nye that he had been threatened with hospitality peculiar to the formerly klan-ridden State. Nye wired him to report twice a day and after that heard nothing for two or three days. He was just about to ask the Department of Justice to rescue his agent when word came from him that he was getting along right and digging up more and more stuff favorable to Tom.

Committee Needs Funds.

Now the committee's funds have run out and they are asking for $45,000 more. The Democrats, once as good friends of the committee as a committee ever had, began to lose their enthusiasm for it when it went into Tennessee and its action in going down to Alabama to rescue Tom's fortunes has left them stone cold. Privately, any number of them say the committee has exceeded its authority, that it has turned out to be a very high-handed committee, indeed.

Yet they are not ones to want to court Tom's wrath so most of their work against the committee has been done on the quiet.

And it so happens that the committee has enemies on the Republican side, of course. It has the enmity of Senators David Reed, George Moses and James Davis, for one thing, because it intends to use some of the $50,000 to pursue its inquiry in Pennsylvania and Montana. There have been reports that Moses' name would figure in Montana, but the belief is that he doesn't seriously care about this, but as a regular Republican

POLICEMAN REFUSES TO IDENTIFY 'FIND' BY LANGDON IN SLAYING

DISCOVERY OF BULLET UNDER BED NARRATED

Shot Alleged to Have Gone Through Mattress Left Faint Mark, Claim.

Two dirty, half-rotten sections of flooring ,produced with something of a flourish last night at a coroner's inquest and declared to have come from under the bed on which Beulah Limerick was shot to death, suddenly joined the long list of perplexities in the case when Policeman David Thompson refused to identify a hole in them as the one which Patrolman Robert F. Langdon had pointed out to him the night of January 2.

Thompson, big, blonde, and with a slow, Southern drawl, had previously told of visiting the "mystery house" on Nineteenth street southeast, where Langdon was on guard, and having been shown a hole by Langdon as that made by a .25 caliber bullet, which had passed through the mattress above it.

The policeman said that he had been sent to the house to get something to eat for Langdon and had found him working on a radio there. Langdon, he said, pointed out to him a .25 caliber shell which he claimed to have found in a coffee cup, and also showed him the cup itself, resting on the radio. At Langdon's suggestion, he said, he got down on his hands and knees, with his flashlight, and saw a small hole in the flooring under the bed, which had been marked by Langdon with a pencil.

Hole Declared Fresh.

This hole, he said, was white and fresh in appearance, and had small bits of metal in and around it. Langdon, he continued, went to the kitchen and returned with a screwdriver and a hammer, which he used to pry up boards near the two which contained the hole. After about three minutes of search under the floor, Thompson said, Langdon produced a battered .25-caliber bullet.

Following this, Thompson said, he went to No. 5 Precinct and Sergt. Robert Pierce, acting lieutenant of the precinct, returned to the house with him, in the precinct car in which he was patroling the section with another policeman, Sergt. Pierce, he testified, attempted to fit the bullet into the shell, but Langdon suggested that it might be scratched and rendered unsuitable for expert tests.

The built hole under the bed, Thompson declared, could not have been seen by any one casually looking over the room. In fact, he said, it could not have been seen unless the bed was moved from directly above it.

Received One Complaint.

Asked by Harry T. Whelan, attorney for Langdon, if the latter had shown him anything else, or if he had seen a fork during his visit to the house, Thompson replied that he had seen an old fork on the floor, which appeared to have been burned. He added that Langdon showed him two pieces of metal, one of which appeared to be part of a spring, which Langdon said he had found in the ashes.

Asked about complaints coming from neighbors about conditions at the house, Thompson said that he had received one complaint and that he had gone to the house, where he met Ricard Reed, a roomer, who is being held in connection with the case. Reed, he said, invited him in, and there they found Vernon Limerick, brother of the girl, who is also being held. Beulah finally came in, he said, and was told of the complaint, whereupon she said they were going to move shortly.

Policeman Paul Nicholson, of the Fifth Precinct, told of having seen a crap game in progress there last December 5. There was a quarrel in the street, outside, he saidh and when he interfered, a man named McCarty told him that Dave Limerick, another brother, had held him

MAN STABS WOMAN, WITNESS IN MURDER

CAPITALIST'S WIFE SLAIN

Portland, Oreg., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Mrs. W. W. Howard, important witness in the mystery slaying of Mrs. Leone Bowles, Portland society woman, was stabbed twive above the heart and beaten on the head today by a man who seized her as she stepped to the back porch of her home.

The unidentified assailant escaped. The victim's condition is critical. Several weeks ago Mrs. Howard was beaten by two men who entered her home. She said she was threatened with death if she testified in the Bowles case.

Nelson C. Bowles, millionaire, and his former secretary, Irma Loucks Paris, are accused of stabbing Mrs. Bowles, the capitalist's wife, to death. She was found dead in the apartment of Mrs. Paris. Bowles and Mrs. Paris said she took her own life after upbraiding them for their intimacies.

Mrs. Howard's screams attracted neighbors but the woman lost conciousness shortly after they arrived. Just before she became unconscious she cried again and again:

"Get that man away—get that man away."

Neighbors said an automobile had been parked near the Howard home an hour or so before the attack. It had disappeared when the neighborhood was roused by the screams.

Finger prints found on the back door and rail of the porch, have been photographed.

Alleged Fugitive Asks Writ.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Harry Levy, who has been held here several days on a charge of being a fugitive from justice from New York, today applied to Federal Court for a writ of habeas corpus, claiming that he was being illegally held here on vague and indefinite charges.

DRY WIRE TAPPINGS TO BE INVESTIGATED

House Expenditures Group Votes Quiz After Phone Company Complains.

LAW IS BROKEN, CLAIM

(Associated Press.)

Wire tapping by the Prohibition Bureau to obtain evidence is to be scrutinized by the House expenditures committee.

The committee yesterday adopted a motion by Representative Schafer (Republican), Wisconsin, an anti-prohibitionist, to that effect, after he had said the bureau was tapping wires in violation of State laws.

The first hearing, Chairman Williamson announced, will be held January 29. The committee proposes to call Attorney General Mitchell, Prohibition Director Woodcock, and J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Justice Department Investigation Bureau.

Mr. Schafer read to the committee portions of a letter from the Cincinnati and Suburban Bell Telephone Co. which said that last November the Prohibition Bureau had agreed to cease tapping wires, but that since that time "three agents were apprehended" as they attempted to listen in on private lines.

"The telephone company's protests seem to be of no avail," Mr. Schafer said. "On November 26, after the agreement was supposed to have been made, one of the Government agents, producing a shield and identification, a photograph and card, approached one of the employes of the company and offered him $50 to tap a wire the following day."

The Cincinnati company, Mr. Schafer added, was in "an unhappy position" because the prohibition agents "insist upon tapping wires while the State law subjects the offender to

Construction Projects Now Reach $1,500,000,000

This Is Exclusive of State and Private Work, Reported to President's Unemployment Group and Ready to Get Under Way.

(Associated Press.)

Approximately $1,500,000,000 in construction projects, exclusive of State and private work, has been reported to the President's employment committee as ready to get under way.

Cities, counties and other minor political subdivisions have available about $700,000,000 for the public construction, and $217,402,400 more will become available as soon as bonds can be sold.

The government has under way or authorized $346,118,507 in Federal building projects, exclusive of money authorized for purchase of lands and sites. This does not include such large projects as the Hoover Dam.

The exact figure for state building projects has not been reported to the committee, but considerably more than $100,000,000 in State bonds for highway purposes has been voted, and many millions of dollars in contracts are in preparation.

In December $12,109,196 in Federal aid highway projects were contracted for by State highway departments.

Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the employment committee, announcing yesterday that municipal and county and other minor political subdivisions had reported $700,000,000 in work ready, said most of this was being rushed to care for local unemployment.

Calvin Coolidge Says:

The contemplated cost for naval expansion under the first year program for bringing our fleet up to the London limitation treaty standard exceeds $126,000,000. This is only a small beginning, but there does not seem to be any escape from paying it.

Grey, of Fallodon, tells us of the error he believes Germany made before the war when England proposed a naval holiday. He was not in office at the time of the Geneva nor the London conference.

Had the British government applied his reasoning to the situation existing at those conferences a very large sum would be saved to taxpayers of both countries. We know that the British navy is not built against us. We know they have no reason to think our Navy is built against them or any other nation. We can afford to pay a large price to end competition. That is a consolation. But when European people are in distress it is difficult to understand why they insist on large armaments or why those who are most distressed and seem most secure complain the most because their armaments are limited. They ought to rejoice in a new-found freedom.

Woes Dog Prohibition Law As Eleventh Year Is Ended

Three Decisions Now Pending Are Expected to Have Considerable Effect on Future Enforcement; Wet and Dry Leaders Are Confident.

(Associated Press.)

Eleven years old at midnight last night, prohibition ended the first year of its second decade yesterday with few prospects that its path would lead away from the tumult and controversy that have dogged its history. Buffeted by foes and fought for by friends since that day in January, 1920, when the Nebraska Legislature became the thirty-sixth State to ratify the eighteenth amendment, the law faced three early decisions which may affect the course of its future history. They were:

An early submission to President Hoover—possibly upon prohibition's birthday—of the dry law report of the Wickersham law enforcement committee, admittedly controversy laden.

A brewing storm upon Capitol Hill over the Prohibition Bureau's request for 500 additional dry agents and an added appropriation of more than $2,000,000. Argument within a week in the Supreme Court over the recent ruling of Judge Clark in New Jersey, holding the eighteenth amendment invalid. Dry leaders last night, although conceding few peaceful moments for prohibition in its twelfth year, nevertheless stood firm that the law would remain.

Despite "imperfect observance" and enforcement said a statement last night from the Women's Christian Temperance Union, prohibition already has increased the national purchasing power by $6,000,000,000 a year. Listing five benefits of the law, ranging from a reduction of up with a .38 caliber pistol and had taken $5. McCarty, according to Nicholson, did not wish to press charges against Dave, saying that he was drunk, but Nicholson took the youth to the precinct station and charged him with disorderly conduct. A .38 caliber gun was later found, Nicholson testified, but McCarty said it was not the gun alleged to have been used against him.

Denies Phoning Police.

Mrs. Rose V. Langdon, wife of Patrolman Robert F. Langdon, swore before the jury yesterday that she did not make a telephone call to headquarters six weeks ago and say that her husband was parked in an automobile with a girl near the Limerick home.

Detective Sergt. Benjamin C. Kuehling testified that a woman, who said she was Mrs. Langdon, had called headquarters with such information and requested that nothing be said to Patrolman Langdon of the call, because she was afraid of him.

Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins called Mrs. Langdon, who waived all her legal rights and agreed to tell all she knew of her husband's actions at the time of the murder. Harry T. Whelan, attorney for Patrolman Langdon, offered no objection.

Came Home Early.

On the morning of the murder, she said, her husband returned home from work earlier than usual, because she wanted to pack the valise of her daughter, who was going on a trip to Boston. He was to bring some articles to be taken on the trip.

"He came in smiling and whistling," she said, "and kissed our little girl."

Mrs. Langdon was uncertain when her husband had mentioned the Limerick murder to her. On Thursday, the day following the killing, he drove her, with their daughter, past the murder house, she said, because their daughter wanted to see the house where the crime occurred.

"Did you ever have any trouble with your husband, with reference to other women," asked Mr. Collins.

"No," she said.

Had Many Guns.

"Did you ever call Officer Kuehling at headquarters, and ask him to check up on your husband's relationships with another woman?"

"No."

"Your husband had a great many guns, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"Did he generally put on his uniform at the Precinct?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever see a gun on him, before he left for his precinct?"

"Yes, but I did not know whether it was his service gun or not."

Persistent questioning by Mr. Collins regarding her husband's relations with other women failed to elicit any affirmative reply.

Recalled Meeting.

Detective Sergt. Kuehling was then called to the stand and he said that six or seven weeks ago a woman called headquarters and said she was Mrs. Langdon.

"The woman asked me if I remembered her, and said she had met me several years ago, out in the northeast section. I recalled that Officer Langdon had introduced me to Mrs. Langdon at Eighth and H street northeast.

"The woman said that Langdon was in an automobile on Nineteenth street, with a woman. She asked me not to say who called up, as she was afraid of her husband.

Detective Sergt. Thomas C. Dalthouse, of the Fifth Precinct, took up the thread of the story and said he had received a call from Detective Sergt. Kuehling. He sent for Patrolman Langdon, he continued, and the officer denied that he had been parked in a car with a woman.

"I went to his automobile and felt the radiator and it was cold. He was patrolling on foot on that night."

Saw Gun in Home.

Sigfred Michaelis, a plumber, and friend of the slain girl, said that he had seen a 25 caliber automatic in the Limerick home.

Michaelis said that Richard Reed told him he was the owner of the gun, which was lying on the table in the Limerick home. Michaelis's testimony was received with some surprise because Reed has insisted that he never owned a 25-caliber automatic.

"There was a 25-caliber Colt automatic lying on the table," he said. "Dick Reed was fooling with the radio, and I asked him to whom the pistol belonged, and he said that it was his."

Under questioning by Mr. O'Shea, he admitted that he was only guessing when he said that the gun was of 25 caliber.

Says Ownership Denied.

Subsequently, Michaelis said, he had made such a statement in front of Reed at the Fifth Precinct and Reed accused him of "trying to frame him." On this occasion, he said, Reed denied ownership of the gun.

Michaelis said he had once been arrested in 1917 "for having a little fight." Mr. O'Shea, counsel for William E. Paddy, Vernon Limerick and Richard Reed, facetiously asked whether it was the World War.

"Did you ever give this girl any clothes? asked Mr. Collins.

"Yes, I gave her clothes for Christmas."

"How much worth?" asked Mr. Whelan.

"Eight dollars and some cents worth," he replied.

"Did you have a charge account?" asked Whelan.

Discord Over "Dates."

Mr. O'Shea sought to establish the familiarity of the witness with firearms, but received only general replies. Michaelis admitted that he was a fairly good marksman.

A few weeks before the girl was murdered, Robert Merchant, Alexandria radio entertainer, testified she said that Richard Reed "raised hell" because she kept dates with other men.

"She said it wasn't any of his business," Merchant said.

Merchant said that he had never had any arguments with the girl, although Reed had disliked him.

Samuel Friedlander, who conducts a grocery store near the Limerick home, said that Vernon Limerick was one of three persons who telephoned from his store on the day of the murder and warned the party on the other end, "Don't say anything." He was uncertain which of the three made the statement.

Mrs. Bargfrede Released.

George H. Bargfrede, husband of Mrs. Martha Bargfrede, close friend of the Limerick girl, repeated his wife's story of a conversation in the home of Mrs. Dora E. Limerick, in which they were told, they said, that a gun had been found in the stove and they were cautioned "to say nothing about it."

Mrs. Bargfrede, who had been under arrest for 48 hours, was released yesterday.

Bargfrede said that Mrs. Dora Limerick was anxious that nothing be said about the recovery of the "gun" because she was afraid it would interfere with cashing of an insurance policy on her daughter's life.

Mrs. Ethel Limerick, wife of William Limerick and sister-in-law of Beulah, who was present at the conversation in the Limerick home in which the Bargfredes participated, denied the testimony of the Bargfredes concerning the gun and the insurance policy.

Volunteered as Guard.

She added, however, that the Bargfrede woman had cautioned them not to name Robert Merchant as a friend of the girl because "she did not want to get him in this."

Sergt. Robert C. Pierce, of the Fifth Precinct, testified that Patrolman Langdon had volunteered to guard the Limerick home on the night of January 1. "I ordered him not to touch anything in the house," he said.

It was during this watch that Patrolman Langdon found a bullet hole in the flooring under the cot in the murder room and also found a shell in the coffee mug in an adjoining room.

Mrs. Julia Bywaters, sister of the girl, testified that she and her brother William had removed a trunk filled with Beulah's personal belongings from the murder house without advising police of this fact. She said she did not attach any significance to this because she did not think there was anything in it that would aid the police.

Former Husband Heard.

Charles Brown, of Colfimbia road near Fourteenth street northwest, said that he had once boarded at the Limerick house, while Beulah was staying with her mother.

He added that "he liked her a lot," but that he has never been engaged to her although they had discussed marriage.

Mr. Brown denied that he was responsible for Beulah's trip to Kansas last summer. He moved from the house, he told the jury, then became acquainted with another girl and forgot about Beulah. The last time he saw Beulah, he said, was six months ago.

Earl Aitcheson, of Laurel, Md., whose marriage to the Limerick girl was recently annuled, said that he had stopped at the Nineteenth street address recently, "only to see the boys."

Wanted to Be Free.

"What was the cause for your separation?" asked Mr. Collins.

"She wanted to be free and I didn't hesitate a minute and just let her go," he replied.

William D. Willis, owner of the house in which the murder occurred related that on one occasion Reed called him, and asked if he had placed the house under police supervision, because policemen were "running around the house at all hours of the night."

So great was the crowd at the inquest yesterday that police were compelled to clear the room of many spectators, because the fire marshal said fire regulations were being violated.

POLICEMAN SEIZED AS FUGITIVE IN CRASH

fering from shock. NNeville escaped injury.

Policeman Spottswood F. Gravely, of the First Precinct, placed Batchelor under arrest and took him to the station house, where he called the attention of Lieut. Carlin to the man's condition. Lieut. Carlin said it appeared as though Batchelor had been drinking, and he was suspended. His equipment, including a .38-caliber police pistol, was taken from him.

The pistol was empty, even the cartridges being missing. The slugs taken from the Harney home will be compared with the gun to establish if they were shot from it.

Lieut. Harney reported to Lieut. Charles Weber, at Police Headquarters, and made a statement concerning the case. He declared he would ask for a warrant for his son-in-law today in Arlington County. He said his daughter Margaret had been separated from Batchelor for three months. She is planning a divorce, he declared, as soon as she had fulfilled the Virginia requirements as to residence.

Woman Is Injured; Her Husband Held

Mrs. Alice Wegman Leaves Hospital, Despite Fort She Is Warned.

Mrs. Alice Wegman, 27 years old, of Tenth street near L street northwest, was treated at Garfield Hospital yesterday for injuries said by police to have been sustained when her husband, Charles Wegman, of the same address, assaulted her on Sunday.

Dr. George A. Resta, physician attached to the hospital, said that the woman had received a fractured skull and several bruises on the face just below the eyes. Despite her injuries, police say, the woman refused to remain at the hospital for further treatment although she was told that her condition was serious.

The husband was arrested yesterday by police of the Second Precinct, and is being held pending an investigation of the affair.

TARIFF TO RELIEVE OIL INDUSTRY ASKED

Independent Producers Map Drive; Will Take Plea to White House.

SESSION HEARS HURLEY

(Associated Press.)

Independent oil producers yesterday prepared for a dual campaign for a tariff upon oil.

The drive will be carried to Congress and the White House by two committees appointed late in the day.

Senator-elect Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma, heads the goup that will lay the tariff plea before the House and Senate, and Wirt Franklin, president of the Independent Petroleum Association, will lead the committee before President Hoover.

When the two committees will start their direct campaign remains to be determined, but their resolutions, which were prepared last night at executive sessions of the committees, will be reported to the conference today.

Delegations from thirteen States were represented at the meeting. Chairman Franklin in a keynote address pictured conservation as a ruinous policy, building up a monopoly.

Tariff Foes Assailed.

Mr. Franklin assailed opponents of an oil tariff, aiming his attack at Secretary Wilbur. A tariff, he said, was the only method of obtaining relief.

Promises of help to obtain congressional relief were made by several members of the Senate and House, who addressed the conference. Senators Sheppard, of Texas, and Shortridge, of California, promised aid. Representative Garner, Texas, Democratic minority leader, said he was for a tariff if convinced one was needed.

Secretary Hurley, a member of the Oil Conservation Board, of which Wilbur is chairman, appeared as a representative of the board. He said the administration has taken no official stand either for or against a tariff.

Secretary Wilbur's recent statement, Mr. Wilbur said at the time, was a personal opinion and not an official remark.

Ills Blamed on Imports.

Imports, rather than overproduction, were blamed by the State delegations for the present ills of the industry. They expressed the opinion that obtaining an embargo would be difficult, but there was hope for a tariff.

A formal resolution explaining that oversupply was the trouble, proposed by the Texas delegation, was adopted unanimously.

Secretary Wilbur, who was invited by Mr. Franklin to attend today's conference, was unable to appear. He notified the conference, however, that he expected to attend tomorrow.

The producers joined in a general attack upon companies importing South American oil, which they blamed for forcing down American prices.

MAN WHO SUCCEEDS ROBISON IS ONLY 54

Rear Admiral Hart Youngest of His Rank to Head Naval Academy.

GRADUATED IN '97 CLASS

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Jan. 15—Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, who has been chosen by the Navy Department to succeed Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison as superintendent of the Naval Academy when Robison is transferred to the retired list in May, will have the distinction of being the youngest officer of his rank, and perhaps junior as to age and year of graduation, ever to preside over the institution.

As a rule officers assigned as superintendent have been men who were graduated in the eighties and were around the 60-year age limit and therefore approaching retirement. Hart is among the youngest of his rank in the service, having been promoted in 1929. He was graduated from the academy in 1897.

He was born in Geneseo County, Mich., in June, 1877.

For the last 30 years presiding heads of the academy have been captains of more mature years when they came here and were promoted to rear admiral while in office, or held that rank before their appointment.

Before there were a few of the rank of commander who held the office, but in every instance they were men well along in years. Since 1902 eleven officers have held the post, four of whom were rear admirals prior to designation. The others, captains, were promoted before the expiration of their terms.

Federal Purchase For Park Is Asked

Capper Amendment Would Permit Start Without Assent of States.

Amendment of the Cramton bill, providing for a national parkway along the Potomac River, adjacent to the National Capital, is proposed in a bill introduced yesterday by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee.

The Capper measure would permit Federal authorities to buy land needed in the river parkway, to the extent of $3,000,000, without waiting for Maryland or Virginia State governments to commit themselves about sharing expense. The Cramton bill provided that the adjoining States should share in the cost of acquiring the land necessary for the park.

The bill also provided that where property owners along the river in Maryland, between the District line and Fort Washington, dedicated the necessary land the Federal Government should bear the burden of constructing a boulevard along the river, in conformity with plans for development of the park project.

The price since that time has shown a good increase. Mr. Cutten paid $12,600 for his membership. John Barratt and Thomas Howell, heavy Chicago traders, have transferred their business to Winnipeg.

Screams of Girl Foil Assailant

Intruder Flees Through Window When He Fails to Silence Child.

The screams of a 13-year-old girl frustrated an attack attempted yesterday in the apartment at 1460 Irving street northwest, in which she lives. She said the intruder was white, about 30 years old.

Catherine Taylor was returning from school when, as she entered the apartment, the man sprang from a hiding place and seized her. When she screamed, the girl told police, the intruder tried to choke her, but failing to stop her cries became alarmed and fled through a window by which it is believed he entered. The apartment, which is on the first floor, had not been robbed.

A man who resembled her assailant followed her from school Wednesday, Catherine said. Her father, Earl C. Taylor, is an employe in the Department of Commerce.

Shoplifter Suspect Caught After Chase

Charles Williams, a Negro, who said he is from Baltimore, was arrested yesterday after an exciting chase along crowded F street in midcity. He was accused of trying to escape with goods stolen in a department store. A carton containing 30 pairs of gloves, valued at $90, was taken.

Charles Moses, an attache of the store; Policeman H. E. Prince and others took part in the pursuit. A man believed to have been waiting near the store in a car is being hunted.

WILBUR AND KELLEY IGNORE EACH OTHER

Attend Oil Shale Hearing, but Do Not Engage in Conversation.

SECRETARY URGES LAWS

(Associated Press.)

Without exchanging words, Secretary Wilbur and Ralph S. Kelley, who have criticized each other at a distance, faced each other yesterday for the first time.

The Interior Department head and the former chief of field investigations were summoned separately to advise the House public lands committee on legislation on the subject of their disagreement—oil shale lands.

Kelley has charged the department favored large oil companies in disposing of such land in Colorado. The Department of Justice exonerated the Interior Department and Kelley was dismissed from the Government service.

Wilbur Gives Testimony.

Wilbur was testifying when Kelley arrived. The latter sat against a wall and eyed the Secretary with unchanging face. Wilbur gave him a glance occasionally. Completing his testimony, the Secretary withdrew, swiftly striding past his critic.

Kelley was not called yesterday. He was on his way to the Senate to confer with senators when its lands committee postponed indefinitely consideration of a resolution to provide a senatorial inquiry of the shale lands controversy. Several members of the committee were unable to attend.

Wilbur suggested three methods of dealing with the shale land problem. He said Congress might provide specifically that the United States waive its claim on leased lands on which a satisfactory amount of work has been done, it might rule the claims of lessees forfeited when no work has been done, or it could set a future date at which the Government would abandon its claims to the leased land.

Clearing Legislation Urged.

"All uncertainties in connection with oil shale lands should be cleared up by legislation," Wilbur urged. "In the absence of legislation, the department will continue its present conservation policy."

The policy has brought dispute over "valid" and invalid claims under the 1920 act, and over what constitutes sufficient work to preserve titles.

Fireman Is Badly Burned.

Jasper Ailstock, 37-year-old colored man living at 1186 Sixth street northwest, was burned seriously about the arms and body yesterday by a backflare from an oil furnace in the Hill Building, 835 Seventeenth street northwest, where he is employed as a fireman. He was taken to Emergency Hospital.

BROWN ALTERS NEED FOR MAIL BUILDINGS

Backs $45,000,000 Bill, but Asks for Only $15,000,000 for Next Three Years.

PLANS FOR 43 STATIONS

(Associated Press.)

A new $45,000,000 plan for the Federal building program was advocated yesterday by Postmaster General Brown before the House building committee.

He indorsed the Kelly bill to authorize this amount for use over a five-year period for building and buying postoffice stations, branches and garages. If the bill is passed, he said, he would ask the Budget Bureau for immediate approval of only $15,000,000 for the next three years.

"Existing law limits us to the construction of main postoffices and annexes," Brown said. "It would be an advantage to have this bill even if we can not get the funds immediately from the budget."

"At Lessors' Mercy."

Brown answered recent criticisms of excessive postoffice rents by saying that in his lease study "I found no failure to protect the public interest." At the same time he said that, without power to build or acquire stations, "we are at the mercy of the present lessors."

"Unless this leasing policy is changed we will be compelled to renew leases at rentals which may seem excessive," Brown warned the committee.

He advocated Government ownership of stations, branches and garages in cases where it now pays an annual rent of $6,000 or more. He submitted a definite formula that the rent saved on such buildings in twelve years would pay the cost of construction or purchase.

The larger program of the department, Mr. Brown testified, contemplates construction or acquisition of 301 buildings, on which the annual rents now exceed $7,000,000. The ultimate cost of the project was estimated at $70,000,000.

Revises Estimate Downward.

Because of heavy burdens already on the Government, Mr. Brown said this program has been revised downward for the immediate future to 43 buildings at $15,000,000. Current lease in these cases expire by 1935.

Mr. Brown said the $15,000,000 program includes construction of nineteen stations and one garage and purchase of fifteen leased stations and eight leased garages.

"We would like to make a beginning on these 43 cases of outstanding merit," he said.

The committee postponed action until next week.

Baldwin Says "I'm Broke;" But Proud to Use Fortune

Wealth in Iron Shares Has Vanished; Could Have Sold, But Preferred to Nail His Colors to Mast of British Industry.

Birmingham, England, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Former Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin is broke—and is proud of it. In recent years shares in the iron trade owned by the Conservative leader have depreciated in value from three pounds (about $14.60) in 1923, to 20 pence (40 cents) now, he revealed last night.

Speaking at a dinner of the Engineering and Allied Employers Association, Mr. Baldwin said he could have saved most of his loss. "Instead," he added, "I nailed my colors to the mast of the ship of British industry."

"You may ask what right I have to speak about industrial matters," he said after asserting that the ills of business lie in the hands of business men themselves. "I am a politician and you may consider what I have said was impertinence. Will you forgive me for a brief moment if I make my claim?

"There lies in a little country churchyard not a dozen miles from where I live the body of Baldwin, described as being 'of the forge' in the reign of Charles II.

"From that time various members of my family have engaged in nearly every branch of the iron trade. From that day to this, sometimes enjoying prosperity, sometimes having to struggle hard, my family has been connected with that great trade and I have some right to talk of hard times.

"When I took office most of what I had was in that ancient industry. The shares I hold now and which I held then could have been sold for three sterling each—today they are worth 20 pennies. There is no cataclysm on earth that can bring them back to more than a fraction of their former value.

"It may have been bad business on my part—many modern business men would say it was—I ought to have sold at the top of the market. But when you have an old name in business against which nothing has ever been said, when you know the public has come into business on the strength of that name, it is an impossibility to throw your shares on the market when you know that in all human probability the loss will fall on them, not on you."

"No," he said, "I nailed my colors to the mast of the ship of British industry—and I do not regret it."

Mr. Baldwin has been regarded as very wealthy. In 1919, when he was financial secretary to the treasury, he presented 20 per cent of his personal fortune to the government for the reduction of the national debt. The gift amounted to about $600,000, and for years the name of the donor was not made public.

tucky mountains and those in small towns made dependent by drought situation.

"Several hundred drought sufferers, including farm wives with children in arms, flocked to the relief headquarters yesterday, reporting in many instances they had sold their last few chickens or stock, and after helping out their neighbors who were less fortunate, all came together to the Red Cross."

Estimates were that 5,000 families, or about 24,530 persons were being fed in Kentucky.

William Butterworth, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, added his appeal to the many from organization heads in behalf of the $10,000,000 relief fund.

He urged that business organization present the appeal to all their members in order that the present call may be speedily met.

DROUGHT LOAN BILL SIGNED BY HOOVER

loans could not be made to stockmen. The language of the measure specifies that feed loans be limited to work stock.

That recommendation was made by the department, Dr. Warburton said, "largely because that followed lines of previous legislation and because the department does not favor the extension of loans for new purposes."

Scope of Resolution.

Under the resolution loans can be made for the purchase of seed, fertilizer, feed for work stock, and fuel and oil for tractors used in crop production.

Two new loan offices will be established—one at St. Louis and one at Memphis, Tenn. These will supplement those at Grand Forks, S. Dak., and Washington.

Liens will be taken on the crops to secure the loans, Dr. Warburton said. Dairymen or poultrymen with daily incomes have a credit source. He did not believe the producer of cattle, hogs, or sheep eligible for loans from the fund.

"A loan to feed a dairy cow," he said, "is not incident to crop production."

MONTGOMERY BANK DEPOSITS SHOW GAIN

Per Capita Savings Declared Five Times Those Set in Nation's Total.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

Montgomery County's per capita deposits in banks of the county is five times as high as the figure for the Nation, reports of the county banks at the close of business for 1930 show. The per capita deposit for the county is $270. The total deposits show a balance of $13,583,938.29 on hand at the close of business in 1930. This shows an increase over the 1929 figure of $13,492,815.72.

The totals include the Chevy Chase Savings Bank, which is located in the District, but serves the county's most heavily endowed section. The population of the county is estimated to be 50,000. In addition to the deposits in county banks, it is estimated that almost 50 per cent of residents for business and other reasons deposit their money in Washington banks.

Deposits in the county banks were as follows: Sandy Spring Savings Institution, $2,451,540.76; First National Bank of Sandy Spring, $194,564.99; Farmers Banking & Trust Co., $1,392,147.08; Montgomery County National Bank, $2,232,658.62; First National Bank of Gaithersburg, $538,00.42; Bank of Bethesda, $841,009.81; Silver Spring National Bank, $1,194,588.84; Takoma Park Bank, $2,441,173.66; Germantown Bank, $150,176.76; Bank of Damascus, $437,380.05; Chevy Chase Savings Bank, $1,033,045.35; Poolesville Branch of the Central Trust Co., $472,114; Citizens Bank of Takoma Park, $175,543.95.

Banks in the county have elected directors and officers as follows:

Silver Spring National Bank: James H. Cissel, president; Howard McC. Marlowe, vice president; Howard Griffith, vice president; Ira C. Whitacre, cashier; Fred L. Lutes, assistant cashier; Henry C. McCeney, assistant cashier; Joseph C. Cissel, attorney; James H. Cissel, Joseph C. Cissel, J. Donald Clagett, Morrison M. Clark, John J. Dolan, Howard Griffith, John H. Hunter, Howard H. Howlett, E. Brooke Lee, Howard McC. Marlowe, Lacy Shaw, Mark Stearman, Curtis Walker and Ira C. Whitacre, directors.

Takoma Park Bank: H. F. Taff, president; E. Brooke Lee, vice president; David Feldman, vice president; R. Weir Waters, cashier; Ben G. Davis and O. E. Dietz, assistant cashiers; Louis D. Bliss, L. D. Burdett, J. Donald Clagett, H. H. Cobban, E. V. Crittenden, David Feldman, W. K. Hill, E. Brooke Lee, Doran S. Platt, H. E. Rogers, J. L. Shaw, Lacy Shaw and H. F. Taff, directors.

All officers and directors of the Citizens Building & Loan Association of Montgomery County, Inc., excepting one, were reelected at the annual meeting in Rockville. It was reported that the association has more than $150,000 in assets. The board of directors authorized loans totalling $28,000 immediately after the election. This year is the first anniversary of the county organization and the centennial of the building and loan movement.

Officers elected were: John B. Diamond, jr., president; Frank K. Hewitt, first vice president; Lewis Keiser, second vice president; Clifford H. Robertson, secretary; George M. Wolfe, treasurer, and William F. Prettyman, attorney. In addition to these the directors include Frank B. Severance, Harold E. Doyle, Dr. Claude W. Mitchell, William R. Pumphrey, jr., Roy M. Heizer, Dr. Howard H. Howlett, Robert L. McKeever, Clyde E. Thomas, John H. Hunter, Howard McC. Marlowe, Garland W. Wolfe, George M. Hunter, A. R. Selby and S. Walter Bogley.

The Montgomery County, Commissioners sat yesterday at Rockville instead of holding theoir usual Tuesday meeting. The quarterly bill from Children's Hospital, for care of indigent sick, was approved by the commissioners and ordered forwarded to the State comptroller for payment. Montgomery County and Washington hospitals receive indigent sick from the county, certified by a recognized county physician in each selection district, and the State cares for the payment of the bill.

A delegation from Boyd, headed by Eugene McAtee, appeared before the board to urge improvement of the road leading from Old Germantown to Boyd, a distance of about 2 miles. The delegation appeared in support of a petition presented several months ago.

The commissioners granted permission to the Maryland Gas Transmission Co. to construct a 20-inch pipe line, and appurtenant telephone or telegraph lines, under the public roads of the county which the company right of way traverses. The permission was contingent upon restoration of the surface of the road within 120 days after work starts. The pipe line will be laid from Rockville, its present terminus, to the Potomac River. Attorney Robert B. Peter, jr., of Rockville, appeared for the company.

Commissioner Lacy Shaw, president of the board, who has been attending a meeting of the American Road Builders Association in St. Louis, Mo., has returned and presided at the meeting.

Miss Lavinia Engle, of Forest Glen, Montgomery County member of the Maryland House of Delegates, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Montgomery County League of Women Voters at 11 o'clock this morning. The meeting is to be held in Washington, at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women, 1634 I street northwest.

Miss Adele Stamp, chairman of the State League committee on education, will discuss features of her work at the meeting.

The second annual leadership training school of the Sandy Spring neighborhood, will begin Monday and continue for six consecutive Mondays. The school will be conducted under the auspices of the East Montgomery Council of Religious Education, which is subordinate to the Maryland-Delaware Council.

Churches of Ashton, Olney, Sandy Spring, Spencerville, Colesville and Burtonsville will participate in the program. Courses in teaching religion, principles of teaching, Old Testament, and primary materials and methods will be included in the curriculum.

Officers of the school are as follows: The Rev. A. W. Newell, dean and curriculum chairman; Robert H. Miller, jr., publicity chairman; Richard Lansdale, registrar; Mrs. Marcus Dailey, treasurer; Mrs. P. Garland Ligon, local arrangements.

The faculty will include the Rev. Mr. Newell, pastor of the Burtonsville-Ashton M. E. Church, dean; Prof. W. C. Myers, McKinley High School, Washington; D. Elton Trueblood, executive secretary of Homewood Friends Meeting, Baltimore, and Miss Elsie Geis, superintendent, primary department of Centenary M. E. Church, Laurel, Md.

Appointment of Miss Ila Z. Moore, New York, as a public health service nurse for Montgomery County was announced yesterday by Dr. William T. Pratt, county health officer. Miss Moore has been appointed to help care for the extra work brought by an expansion of the health program.

Miss Moore is a native of St. Louis, Mo., graduated from the Washington University Hospital School of Nursing at St. Louis and has done public health work in Illinois.

Mrs. Fern D. Snyder, high school supervisor of the Montgomery County schools, addressed a meeting of the Rockville Parent-Teacher Association last night in the Rockville High School. Mrs. Snyder explained the new high school curriculum work and pointed out that understanding, instead of mere presentation of facts, is the goal of the present system. The meeting concluded with a general discussion.

Mrs. Ethel M. Doherty, of Forest Glen, Md., yesterday filed suit for limited divorce from Daniel H. Doherty, also of Forest Glen, alleging cruelty and extreme nervousness.

Through Attorney Walter W. Dawson, of Rockville, the wife told the court that her husband, a World War veteran, is subject to prolonged drinking spells, and that he has treated her harshly while in such condition, and has made insulting insinuations regarding her character to their friends, and has failed to support her or their two children.

She asks limited divorce, custody of the children and alimony. She has been forced to obtain employment to support herself and children, her pleading declared. While living under the same roof with her husband, she has not resumed martial relations for five years, she stated. The couple was married January 30, 1921, at Fort Myer, Va.

Absolute divorce, custody of one child and alimony of $75 a month was awarded to Mrs. Olive T. Kephart yesterday by Judge Robert B. Peter, in circuit court at Rockville. Through Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, of Rockville, the wife charged Richard L. Kephart with infidelity. The couple was married February 11, 1921, at Fredericksburg, Va.

EUGENE R. WOODSON.

Woodson Unhurt In Mexican Quake

Kiwanian, of Washington, Wires News of His Safety to Friends Here.

Eugene R. Woodson, secretary-treasurer of the Railway Accounting Officers Association, and a member of the Washington Kiwanis Club, escaped unscathed in the earthquake which Wednesday shook Mexico City, he tlegraphed Merritt O. Chance, president of the local Kiwanis group.

Mr. Woodman was in the Mexican capital on business for the accounting association, which represents all railroads in the United States, Canada South America, Cuba, Porto Rico and European countries. He is also an attorney for the railroads in accounting cases before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

is concerned with the pursuance of the case against Davis.

Nye Corners Members.

At any rate, Nye chased the audits and accounts committee, which must pass on its $50,000 request, around all day yesterday as well as the day before. Somehow the committee could just not get together.

When Nye cornered Senator Deneen, chairman, and three other members on the floor late yesterday, he inquired about matters, and after Deneen had said he had tried to get the members together, but that, for example, there was Senator Caraway right over there who could not attend, and Caraway had insisted there must be some misunderstanding, that he would attend a meeting right now, and Nye pressed with the request that the four members withdraw right then and report, it was Moses who relieved the committee members' embarrassment. He said he would object to the consideration of any report the impromptu meeting might evolve.

Heflin looked at Moses as if he couldn't believe his ears. To think that George Moses would go back on him; Moses, who understood him and should appreciate him so well. Then he recalled that about an hour before Moses had prevented the consideration of a harmless little resolution he had offered, and then Tom proceeded to tell about what an outrage the theft of the election from him had been.

Black Defends Voters.

His colleague, Senator Black, took issue with him, saying that while he did not want to get into a controversy he felt that he should resent the bad name given to the voters of his State.

"Why, I am not saying anything against the voters," shouted Tom. "I love them. I am for them. I am trying to protect them against the ballot box crooks."

Nye gave notice that he would move to discharge the audits and accounts committee if it did not report on his $50,000 appropriation today. His inquisitorial committee has stepped on so many toes that he may not get the money—and that would be too bad for Tom.

12 DEAD, MANY HURT IS EARTHQUAKE TOLL

Soldiers Turning Over Debris in Southern Mexico to Extricate Bodies.

CITY OF OAXACA IN RUINS

Mexico City, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Soldiers were turning over the wreckage of the thriving city of Oaxaca tonight carrying out the bodies of men and women who perished in the earthquake which last night rocked southern Mexico.

At least twelve persons perished and many more were injured, but telegraphic communication was impossible and radio messages irregular. The city itself, fragmentary messages said, was in ruins and the panic-stricken people slept in the open, despite intense cold, because they were afraid to go back to such homes as were left standing.

The only clear picture of the disaster came out of the ruined city in a message to President Ortiz Rubio from Gen. Evaristo Perez, the military commander in the State of Oaxaca.

It was he who said that at least 25 persons had been killed or injured. Another message to the department of communications said that twelve had been killed, but this could not be verified immediately.

"It is impossible to describe the confusion here," the general's message said. "The loss is incalculable. At least 25 persons have been killed or injured and we are still discovering bodies of the dead."

The general's home was destroyed and he was living in his automobile, he said. The military barracks was in ruins and a colonel of cavalry was one of those killed. The police were helping the soldiers to search the ruins for additional victims.

The epicenter of the quake, which struck Oaxaca at about 10 o'clock last night, was placed a few miles northeast of the city. Mexico City itself was shaken for 4 minutes and one person was killed and 25 injured. There also was considerable property damage.

The quake was felt over a wide area embracing fifteen states of the republic. Vera Cruz and Tampico reported only minor damage. It was generally regarded as the most severe shock since that of June, 1911, when the death toll was estimated as high as 2,000.

Appeals Dropped By Two in Fraud

Hitz Places E. F. Lukens and Butler Kellogg on Probation.

Butler Kellogg, said to be a New York stock broker, and Edward Fell Lukens, an attorney of Philadelphia, Pa., convicted recently in the District Supreme Court on mail fraud charges, yesterday dropped their appeals and were placed on probation by Justice William Hitz.

Action of Justice Hitz followed advice that Frederick E. Lewis, of Philadelphia, and Fred A. Dolph, of Washington, joint defendants, were dead. Lewis was convicted with Kellogg and Lukens, and shortly afterward committed suicide. Dolph died before the case was tried.

The men are alleged to have operated a million-dollar swindle throughout the country in obtaining advance payments for the floating of bond issues. Only $200,000 of the alleged sum was obtained here, according to the indictment. Kellogg is under sentence to serve a year and a day in jail, and Lukens, to serve eighteen months. Both men will be on probation for the respective periods.

Capt. Gross Set Free On Charge of Contempt

New York, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Capt. Christian Gross, formerly in the United States diplomatic service, was released today in the custody of his attorney, after his arrest on a charge of contempt of court.

Capt. Gross was arrested last night when he arrived from Europe. He has been charged by his wife, Virginia Harrison Gross, daughter of Francis Burton Harrison, former Governor-General of the Philippines, with failing to obey an order of the Supreme Court directing him to turn over $250,000 to her.

DRAFT TO DISARM PRAISED BY CECIL

Calls Step Potential Toward Complete Disappearance of Aggressiveness.

DUBIOUS ABOUT AMERICA

London, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—The draft disarmament convention reached at the recent session of the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission is described by Viscount Cecil of Chelwood as a potential first step to complete disappearance of aggressive armaments all over the world.

Lord Cecil's view was presented in a dispatch sent to Foreign Minister Arthur Henderson last month and made public tonight. Commenting on the convention, which he helped to make as the British delegate, Lord Cecil said it was only a framework that must depend on the figures which the various governments ultimately will accept.

"At present," he added, "the United States is unable to agree on any system of budgetary limitation and the United States' delegate is unable to hold out any hope that the attitude of his Government in this respect might undergo a change.

"If this should unhappily prove to be the case, the British government might have to reconsider their attitude—at least in regard to the limitation of naval materials."

Lord Cecil ends the dispatch with a statement that it rests with the governors to give proof of their oft-repeated intentions to reduce the burden of armaments and therewith the risks of war.

"They know what is expected of them," he concluded, "and that, provided good will is not lacking, they can make of the disarmament convention a genuine first step toward complete disappearance of all aggressive armaments among the nations of the world."

The draft convention will be the basis of discussion for a world disarmament conference which probably will be called in 1932.

Expressionistic Dancers Charm Capital Audience

Harold Kreutzberg and Yvonne Georgi Give Demonstration of Grace and Beauty Synchronized With Music From Classical Masters.

Washington, still talking about the wonderful dancing of Mary Wigman last week, had a chance yesterday to see two other exponents of terpsichorean art from Germany in Harald Kreutzberg and Yvonne Georgi, sensational team of expressionistic dancers, in a program given at Constitution Hall.

The audience was charmed by their complete grasp of choreography. Grace, vitality and rhythmic control of the muscles were demonstrated in their dances throughout their program. Their ensemble work was one of real beauty and unity and the costuming added much to the plastic pictures they formulated in rapid success on the stage.

Unlike Mary Wigman, they found inspiration in full musical support which was admirably supplied by Kraus Billig at the piano. The synchronization of the music with the dance itself was an artistic feat which enhanced the pleasure of the audience and contributed largely to the presentation of the impressive dance numbers.

Hailed as the world's premier impressionistic dancers, Harald Kreutzberg and Yvonne Georgi did much to augment and justify that reputation yesterday afternoon. Included in the program were a group of classical selections by Brahms, Mozart, Ravel and other masters, which were interpreted by the dancers in an unforgettable manner.

Two dances outstanding in plastic beauty were "The Angel of Annunication" and "Hymn," while other facets of their art were displayed in the "Arabian Dreams" dance and "The Festival Dance," by Brahms.

The program was given by the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene, and was the second attraction of that impresario's "Philharmonic Concert Series" at Constitution Hall.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

BALTIMORE is now enjoying Lynn Riggs' cowboy drama, "Green Grow the Lilacs," which comes to the National Theater next Monday night under the auspices of the Theater Guild. In the old days of show business, there was a saying to this effect: "Any time a weak show needs bolstering, all you have to do is to put in a quartette." Although "Green Grow the Lilacs" has a quartette singing some of the real old cowboy chanties, it is not by any means a weak show—that is if the encomiums of praise heaped upon it by the Baltimore reviewers mean anything.

* * * *

When the mysterious meanderings of "The Blue Ghost" quit theatricals for all time, tomorrow night, the stage of the Belasco Theater will be turned over next week to a play by Anita Harj and Maurice Braddell, a bit of comedy called "In the Best of Families"—a title, by the way, which almost stamps it as domestic farce; since anything can happen in the best-regulated families. This particular play brings back to Washington one of the favorites of years ago, Mr. Charles Richman, an actor who seldom gets to this port. He was last here in George C. Tyler's all-star revival of "Diplomacy," playing at the National Theater, exactly three years ago this month.

* * * *

Incidentally, George C. Tyler now has in New York the latest play from the pen of Booth Tarkington, a comedy built around the life of Aaron Burr and called "Colonel Satan," with McKay Morris, a Washington boy, playing the title role. From Orville H. Stewart, an old-time Washington newspaper man, who saw the play in its premier in Columbus, Ohio, the other night, comes this interesting paragraph:

"This strikes me as a splendid production of a really strong play, with the characters, especially that of Burr, very clearly drawn and portrayed. At times the dramatic interest is intense, the whole spiced with keen wit and wholesome humor characteristic of Tarkington. McKay Morris cleverly presents the Aaron Burr as seen by Tarkington, which is somewhat different from the slayer of Hamilton as generally understood. However, we recognize some phases of this character in Emerson Hough's 'Magnificent Adventure' and the story of Hamilton by Claude Bowers. And yet it is an entirely new Burr as visualized by Tarkington in the French atmosphere."

Years ago, Mary Pickford, "Queen of the Movies," was known as "America's Sweetheart." Now come Schwab and Mandel, producers of musical comedy, with a new operetta having that title—"America's Sweetheart." With a Hollywood background it has its premiere performance next Monday night in Pittsburgh, and will move on to Washington the following week; finding harbor here in the National Theater. It features three principals—Jean Aubert, Gus Shy and Jack Whitney, with Inez Courtney in a prominent role, the Three Forman Sisters, newcomers, and Alfred Goodman's Band. This is heralded as the most important musical comedy opening in Washington this season. The National Theater is opening its box-office sale next Thursday morning at 7 o'clock—of all hours. Usually, the boxoffice at the National opens at 9 a. m., but this time the management wants to give Government workers a chance to get their seats early, on the way to work.

* * * *

At this stage of the game, it seems that the two plays which left Washington last week and landed on the New York stage are sitting, as they sometimes say, rather prettily. They are, it may be remembered, Mr. Philip Barry's confection of love, "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," and Mr. George Kelly's treatise on playwrighting, "Philip Goes Forth."

JANUARY COLD GRIPS ATLANTIC SEABOARD

Biting Winds Whip Plains States; Winter's Sway Holds in Mexico.

CANADA BREWING CHILLS

(Associated Press.)

Mid-January means cold, and it is.

Great ships of the sea ploughed to the refuge of their piers, along the North Atlantic seaboard yesterday, sheathed in ice. Biting winds whipped the plains States and New England buttoned up its overcoat against temperatures that had sunk to single figures.

The ultimate of yesterday's cold was in the Adirondacks, where Tupper Lake, N. Y., had a minus 21; but the Canadian Northwest continued brewing cold, which made itself felt in the Dakotas, Minnesota and, in lesser degree, in the Midwest.

Unseasonable cold continued to stretch into the usually sun-warmed reaches of Mexico. There have been three deaths from exposure in Mexico City and others in the city's suburbs. Temperatures, though only slightly below freezing there, were keenly felt by a people unused to them.

The colder weather yesterday was centered east of the Mississippi, with warmer reports from the West. Washington and Oregon experienced light rains. Snow has fallen in the Virginias and the Carolinas.

In Philadelphia at 16 above it was the second coldest day of the season there. Most of the days' submero reports came from up-State New York.

Mountains of Moon To Be Lecture Topic

The Mountains of the Moon, in Africa, where natives wear fur coats and penetrate "forests" of heather 50 feet high, will be the subject of an address this evening by Carveth Wells before members of the National Geographic Society at the Washington Auditorium.

This coldest part of Africa is in the western edge of northern Uganda, just south of Lake Albert and west of Africa's largest lake, Victoria. It lies immediately under the equator. It is from these mountains that many of the streamlets flow that constitute the long-undiscovered head waters of the Nile. The lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides and motion pictures.

Change Proposed In Veterans' Bill

Senate Move Is Aimed At, Fortifying Guardianship Conditions.

An amendment to the veterans' guardian bill for the District was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee.

The amended bill is designed to meet objections voiced in the last session of Congress by Senators Blaine, McKinley, Bratton, Walsh, of Montana, and others, that the bill then pending did not adequately safeguard all the legalities it was designed to safeguard.

The measure in general conforms, it is said, with laws enacted in 30 States. It is a little different in one respect, inasmuch as many veterans who need guardians are not legal residents of the Capital. A Washington guardian is permitted these men and the children of such men who have died. The Capper measure limits to five the number of persons who may be taken under the guardianship of an individual, with certain exceptions, such as children of a dead veteran.

In brief, the measure is designed to prevent persons taking advantage of the plight of World War veterans and waxing fat on the profits that may be derived from fees incident to wholesale guardianship.

Two New Candidates Presented to Kiwanis

Two new candidates, C. Ralph Barker, president of A. H. Baker Co., and Allen B. McDaniel, secretary-treasurer of Research Service, Inc., were presented for membership in the Washington Kiwanis Club at a luncheon yesterday in the Washington Hotel.

Mr. Barker and Mr. McDaniel were introduced by Harry G. Kimball, chairman of the Kiwanis education committee. Presentation of a loving cup to W. Herbert Gill, recently a father, by the Rev. Edward Roach, was a feature of the luncheon. A musical program was rendered by Earl Carbaugh and his son, Robert, accompanied by Mrs. Carbaugh. Merritt O. Chance, recently elected president, presided.

New Yorker and Woman Fatally Hurt in Crash

Miami, Fla., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—A man and a woman were fatally injured and four negroes less seriously hurt in an automobile accident near here late today.

The man and the woman died in a hospital.

Police said they had identified the man through papers in his pockets as Joseph F. Curley, of New York. He was riding with the woman, police said, in an automobile rented from an agency.

HEAD OF ARMOUR CO. DIES FOLLOWING FALL

White had disappeared. Looking out of the window, he saw the body jammed against an areaway wall at the base of the house.

It was Mr. Reed's belief that an accidental blow suffered by Mr. White at a banquet of Armour employes yesterday had caused him to become dizzy and lose his balance.

"Mr. White," he said, "had been called upon for a speech. He climbed on to the speaker's table. Suddenly he fell backward to the floor, striking so sharply that it was necessary to put him under the care of a physician for an hour. Today he said he felt all right.

"When I talked to him, I commented on the reason fr his sitting n the sill. 'Oh, that's all right,' he said. 'There's plenty f heat here and I need the air.'"

Coroner Dwyer said that from the position of thebody it was evident death was accidental. Otherwise, it could not have come to rest so close to the house, he said.

Mr. Reed emphasized that Mr. White's financial affairs were in excellent condition and asserted he would have had no possible motive for taking his life.

SCHOOL INSTRUCTION IN MUSIC EXPLAINED

Dr. Barnes Tells Principals New Method Improves on Old System.

"DO, RE, MI" DISCARDED

Present methods of teaching music in schools were described to the Elementary Principals Association yesterday afternoon, at a meeting held at the Franklin School, by Dr. E. N. C. Barnes, director of music in the public school system.

The old do, re, mi system has been abandoned, he said, in favor of the song method type of teaching. The pupils now are taught to read music, instead of learning a number of songs by rote.

The advantage of the song method system, he said, is that it gives the child patterns, and teaches them to recognize themes. It not only gives them a knowledge of songs, but provides them with an understanding of the system on which songs are built.

Washington is far behind in its musical program in the school system, Dr. Barnes declared. Work of his department was aimed, he said, to spread a desire for orchestral music in Washington.

Dr. Barnes told of plans for the Washington school brigade band to take over the Damrosch hour of a national radio system on February 27, in conjunction with schools of four other cities. Washington will have 15 minutes of the program.

Mrs. Helen T. Steinbarger, readers' advisor of the Mount Pleasant Public Library, presented a book review.

Dr. Frank Ballou, superintendent of public schools, who was to have given the principal talk, was unable to attend because of the hearing on school matters before the House District committee.

The principals voted to issue two additional numbers of their bulletin, the first of which appeared recently.

as much as three years in jail and a fine of $1,000."

He quoted testimony of Woodcock, Mitchell and Hoover to show that although Hoover's department does not condone the practice it is the "policy of the Prohibition Bureau."

"One branch of the Justice Department," Mr. Schaefer explained, "says it is all right—the other fires a man for doing it."

When Director Woodcock was before the appropriations subcommittee last month, Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, asked if his bureau had a policy permitting wire tapping.

Mr. Woodcock replied: "We do, and the Supreme Court has approved the practice."

Mr. Schafer attacked this assertion as a "misinterpretation."

"The order granting the appeal in the case to which Woodcock undoubtedly referred," the Wisconsin member said, "confined the hearing to the question of whether the use in evidence of private telephone conversations intercepted by means of wire tapping, violated the fourth and fifth amendments to the Constitution. The ruling which was returned by a 5 to 4 vote, was not on the legality of the practice, but on whether evidence obtained in that manner could be admitted in evidence."

Mr. Schafer said 28 States have laws making it illegal to tap wires. When the annual Justice Department supply bill comes before the House, he added, he will offer an amendment to provide that none of the funds may be used for wire tapping or for the pay of agents who obtain information in that manner.

Court Awards Woman $2,000 From Railroad

A District Supreme Court jury, before Justice Wendell P. Stafford, yesterday awarded Isabella D. Johnson, of the Mendota Apartments, a verdict of $2,000 against the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. for injuries suffered December 1, 1927, at the Union Station. The Washington Terminal Co, a party defendant, was acquitted by order of the court.

According to testimony the woman had purchased a ticket for Baltimore and was boarding the train when a step covering fell and injured her. She was represented by Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert, R. H. Yeatman and George D. Horning, jr.

poverty to the abolition of "blue Monday," the W. C. T. U. asked what "did the saloon do in its 130 years."

On the other side Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, stood on his recent prediction that 24 States were ready to vote for repeal and that the necessary 12 more could be marshaled within two years after the question was submitted to the people by Congress. At the same time he listed gains in the wet rank from the recent congressional elections.

Prohibition Director Woodcock holds the belief that the New Year will witness an increased enforcement against commercial violations, leading eventually to a complete suppression of this type of offense.

James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, has sponsored the statement that this year and the next might see the crisis in opinion concerning the law, and has urged a move to uphold public morale until Federal enforcement machinery is further perfected.

A review of prohibition's eleventh year shows controversy attending it almost daily. Initialed with a series of recommendations from the Wickersham commission, among them proposals for juryless trials, a unified border patrol, the since-completed transfer of the prohibition bureau from the treasury to the justice department, the controversy grew rather than diminished.

Early in February, the House judiciary committee loosed a rush of statements for and against the law in a series of public hearings on seven measures to repeal the 18th amendment. Not until April 23 did the assembled wets and drys complete their testimony.

There followed the protracted hearings of the Senate lobby committee which, in its course, quizzed the leaders of both the prohibition and anti-prohibition forces.

$184,000 Is Paid For Parkside Hotel

Attorney Buys Property at Auction for Undisclosed Parties.

The Parkside Hotel, ten-story stone, brick and concrete structure, at 1336 I street northwest, was sold yesterday to Louis A. Dent, attorney, at the offices of Adam A. Weschler & Son, auctioneers, 920 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Mr. Dent, who made the purchase for undisclosed parties, paid $184,000 which included a first deed of trust amounting to $150,000. The building will continue to operate under lease as a hotel.

The building, first called the Chaumont Apartment, was erected in 1919. John L. Barr and Edmund D. Rheem were the owners and builders and the cost of construction was more than $200,000. B. Stanley Simmons was the architect.

District building records list as successive owners, Barry Bulkley, Jessie Owen Cugle, Harrison G. Dyar and 1336 I Street, Inc. The building was advertised for sale at public auction November 7, but a settlement was made at that time and the auction was cancelled. District building tax records place the current assessed value of the land and building at $225,933.

Automobile Firm Sued for $13,566

Finance Corporation Seeks Money From Bankrupt Company.

Seeking to recover $13,566 the International Finance Corporation, with offices in the Investment Building, filed suit yesterday against the Washington Cadillac Co. and the General Motors Acceptance Corporation. The Washington Cadillac Co. filed a petition in bankruptcy recently.

The plaintiff alleges it advanced money on several automobiles on representation that they were free from liens. Despite this, the plaintiff states the acceptance corporation on December 10, last, took possession of the cars on which advances had been made. It also is contended that at the time the Washington Cadillac Co. purchased the automobiles from the Cadillac Motor Car Co, of Detroit, Mich., no conditional bill of sale, if any, was recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds.

Attorneys Douglas, Ober & Douglas, E. D. Campbell and L. A. Ward appear for the plaintiff.

No Reasons for War, Only Excuses, Is Charge

There is only one cause for war, "the competition of the war systems of nations," and only one cure, "the demobilization of the war institution," according to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, who arrived here last night for the sixth conference on the cause and cure of war, opening Monday at the Washington Hotel.

"In the first cause-and-cure-for-war conference in 1925, 257 causes of actual wars were listed," Mrs. Catt said. "Subsequent conferences brought unexpected but more optimistic facts. No sensible person now believes that modern wars have causes; every one knows that instead they have excuses."

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

REPORT DELIVERED BY MAYOR PIERCE

Data on Funds From Sale of Alexandria's Gas Plant Given.

ZONING PLAN IS ADOPTED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
307 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 332.

Mayor Carroll Pierce, who is chairman of the board of trustees appointed by the city council to handle the fund received by the city in the sale of the gas plant and distribution system to the Alexandria Gas Co., made his report to the council yesterday of the transactions of the trustees to January 1.

The original fund amounted to $750,000, in addition to which the trustees received $220 interest on investments, or total receipts of $150,220.

Under disbursements, the report shows $93,750 paid to the city treasurer under the allotment of a separate fund which may be used for certain purposes, and $162,500 for the purchase of outstanding city bonds of the issues of 1902, 1908 and 1916; purchase of outside securities, $116,000.39, the face value of these securities being $117,000, this investment being on account of the allocation of $237,000 to retire outstanding bonds of the issue of 1921. Premiums on bonds purchased, to January 1, amounted to $1,812.62, interest paid was $2,490, and the trustees expended $11.35 in expenses, consisting of stationary and stamps. This brought the total disbursements up to $376,764.36, leaving a balance on hand in the treasury of $373,455.64.

Since January 1, the trustees have purchased additional bonds bringing the total purchases to January 15 up to $287,000 of the issues of 1902, 1908 and 1916, which mature in 1932 and 1938. Also, between January 1 and January 15, the trustees have invested an additional $4,000 in outside securities, making a total of $120,000 so invested.

Three Issues Mentioned.

Of the three issues of bonds mentioned, there is now outstanding, of 1902, $10,100; of 1908, which was originally $750,000, $298,000, and of 1916, $41,500. The 1908 issue was for the purpose of redeeming old canal and railroad bonds of the issue of 1879.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the trustees to pay interest for 1931 on the outstanding bonds of the three issues mentioned, this item having been taken care of in the budget, and this resolution being merely for the purpose of authorizing expenditure of the necessary funds.

A resolution was also introduced and held over under the rules, which would authorize the placing of a temporary loan of $15,000, in anticipation of the collection of city licenses, these collections having been delayed due to the fact that the commissioner of revenue has not yet received the forms for the licenses.

Amendments were adopted to the city license ordinance, making the fee for vehicles used in the distribution of bread $75 a year, the fee for out-of-town bread vehicles having been $100, while for local trucks the fee was $75; a license fee of $100 a year for miniature golf courses was also adopted, this being a new item. The license ordinance regarding motor vehicles engaged in the transportation of freight or passengers in accordance with Section 419 of the code of Virginia as adopted by the 1930 legislature.

Temporary Zoning Ordinance.

A temporary zoning ordinance was adopted, among the provisions of which is that no permission will be granted for construction or alterations to business property without first submitting an application to the zoning commission. The commission as at present constituted consists of George Garrett, chairman; Nicholas J. Lawler, Ben B. Ezrine, Robert L. Kane and I. U. Reardon.

An application from B. H. Apter for a building permit at 720 King street was approved. Application from B. B. Ezrine, relative to opening on Washington street of a gasoline filling station at the southwest corner of Washington and Franklin streets, was referred to the zoning commission, and Mr. Ezrine directed to furnish plans and specifications, the report of the zoning commission to be reported to the council.

A communication was received from Elliott F. Hoffman, secretary of the local board of tax equalization, reporting that the board has now completed its work, and that the assessment of the local board of assessors had been reduced by $15,000, this not including the general reduction of 50 per cent made by the board previously, which resulted in a tax rate of $2.40 per $100 on real property.

A communication was received from Morton L. Wallerstein, secretary of the League of Virginia Municipalities, in regard to a recent increase in the membership fee, from $200 to $400 a year. The council had inserted in the budget for this year $200 for this purpose, and no change was made.

The Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs held a joint meeting yesterday with Roger C. Sullivan, president of the first named, presiding, and the program in charge of Harry B. and J. Snow, president of the Rotary Club, gave a short talk and introduced Henry Moncure and Lawrence Roland, who gave an Amos 'n' Andy sketch. The Kiwanis quartette, George E. Warfield, Irvin Diener, Harry B. Caton and J. Randall Caton, gave selections.

D. C. Givens, of the Kiwanis Club, presented a camera to Harry F. Kennedy, as the outstanding member of the club in the past month.

Police Capt. W. W. Campbell, who has been seeking information of the relatives of John Hamilton, a seaman who died recently in the Alexandria Hospital, has ascertained that Mr. Hamilton's mother, Mrs. Catherine Hamilton, lives in New Castle, Belfast, Ireland, and has written her.

It was also disclosed that Mr. Hamilton had a brother, Thomas, whose address was given as 26 South street, New York City, but as this is the Seamen's Institute, the address is assumed to have been temporary. Information regarding the relatives of Mr. Hamilton came from the Lake Carriers' Association, Cleveland, Ohio.

The body of Mr. Hamilton was buried in Penny Hill Cemetery, the local potter's field.

Prominent officers of the Forty and Eight, the playground organization of the American Legion from Washington, and the State adjutant of Virginia, are expected to be guests of the local voiture tonight at their ladies' night entertainment, at which members of families of voyageurs, and members of the Eight and forty, the women's organization, will be guests.

Speed-limit signs showing a limit of 25 miles an hour were placed yesterday on the lower, or river, road, from the beginning of that road, on North Washington street extended, to Four Mile Run, the present city limits, owing to the frequent violations of the speed limit on that section of road.

This portion of the road was formerly a State highway, on which the speed limit was 35 miles, but now increased to 45 miles an hour. Now that it is within the Alexandria city limits, however, it is subject to the same regulations as other streets, or 25 miles an hour on residence streets and 15 miles in the business section.

COUNTY CHAMBER AT ANNUAL DINNER

Speakers at Arlington Function Praise Progress of Section.

MANY GUESTS PRESENT

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 569. Clarendon, Va.

With more than 200 persons gathered in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon last night, the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce held its annual dinner meeting. The invocation was offered by the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell, pastor of the Clarendon Baptist Church. President Ashton C. Jones introduced Henry C. Morris, vice president, who acted as toastmaster.

C. H. Weber, general commercial manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia, the principal speaker, stressing the rapid development of Arlington County, pointed to the great progress made by the telephone company. He stated that in 1878, when the Falls Church Telephone was organized by the M. E. Church, there were 50 telephones in service. In 1916, when the company was purchased by his company, there were 750 telephones in service. Today there operated from the Clarendon exchange 3,850 telephones.

He declared that Arlington County, located, as it is, in the greater Washington area, is ideal for both commercial and residential development.

Other speakers were G. A. G. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co., and Floyd W. King, executive vice president of the Virginia Public Service Co., both of whom spoke in glowing terms of the rapid development of Arlington County and stated that the Chamber of Commerce is to be congratulated for the wonderful part it has played in that development.

President Ashton C. Jones, in his report, gave a comprehensive outline of the accomplishments of the chamber during the past year. He stated that one of the outstanding accomplishments was the bringing of the members of the Virginia legislature to the county and showing them what was needed for the continued development of the county.

Mr. Jones declared that if some of the states in the west were so located as Arlington County with the opportunities that are offered they would give any amount of money and take advantage of these opportunities.

The report of the treasurer, Louis C. Carl, shows that today the chamber of commerce is free of debt.

Among the honor guests were George B. Fraser and P. A. Woodhead, vice presidents of the Washington Gas Light Company; George W. Plitt, president of the Washington Board of Trade; Fletcher Kemp, county school superintendent; County Engineer C. L. Kinnier, William S. Hoge, jr., Harry A. Fellows, president of the Arlington County Civic Federation; Representative-elect Judge Howard W. Smith, J. Barton Phillips, president of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, and Edmund H. Allen, president of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce.

The program included fancy dances by Jane and Louis Carl and Susan Hall, songs by Anna Mendell and Marion Moreland, and community singing led by Harold M. Brown.

The dinner was served by the ladies of the Clarendon Rebekah Lodge.

The annual election of officers was postponed until Thursday night, January 29.

Having issued in excess of 5,000 automobile tags in Arlington County, J. V. Turner, in charge of the distribution, closed his office at the county courthouse yesterday. The deadline for 1930 tags was midnight last night and reports are that the State police will be active today on all State highways in the county on the lookout for persons operating their cars on 1930 tags.

The County Board of Supervisors, meeting yesterday, authorized County Engineer C. L. Kinnier to sign a contract with the Texas Oil Co. for gasoline and oil to be furnished to the fire departments within Arlington County. This action brings an end to a determined fight on the part of the fire departments who for many years have contended that the county should furnish the necessary gasoline and oil to operate the fire fighting equopment.

The request for permits for sign boards brought forth the statement from Chairman Edward Duncan that he is having a change of heart and is not so opposed to the erection of the sign boards as in the past.

"One of the papers in Washington has carried on a determined campaign against sign boards in Maryland and Virginia and I can not see why they should be so interested in this State," Mr. Duncan said.

"The erection of the signboards has given employment and several thousands of dollars has been spent within the State by companies having signboards erected," he said.

No action was taken by the board for the request for a permit which was made by Edgar W. Pumphrey, who at the last meeting made a similar request.

At the afternoon session the board considered a number of changes in the zoning ordinance but withheld action. There will be another afternoon meeting January 30 at which time Engineer Kinnier will submit in writing all proposed changes. At that meeting the board will set a date for the holding of a public hearing on the question.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Arlington Trust Co., held yesterday at the bank building at Rosslyn, the entire board of directors was reelected as follows: E. Wade Ball, M. E. Church; George B. Fadeley, John E. Fowler, William C. Gloth, Harry K. Green, Robert N. Harper, Ashton C. Jones, C. T. Merchant, Allan B. Prosise and Harry R. Thomas.

Concluding the stockholders' meeting, the board met for reorganiation, electing the following officers: John E. Fowler, president; C. T. Merchant, first vice president; M. E. Church, second vice president; Alan B. Prosise, cashier; Harry R. Thomas, secretary and trust officer, and William C. Gloth, counsel.

In reviewing the past year's operations, the president, in his annual report, called attention to increased net earnings of 50 per cent over the previous year, also to increases of 20 per cent in deposits, very nearly 100 per centi n cash reserves and over 100 per cent in secondary reserves, with no bills payable or rediscounts.

The county public schools wil be closed Monday, it being Robert E. Lee's birthday.

Speaking at the meting of the Holy Name Society of St. Charles' Catholic Church at Clarendon last night, on "American Citizenship," Representative John W. McCormick, of Massachusetts, caled upon all Americans to be prepared at al ltimes to defend the Constitution of the United States against attacks from without and disintegration from within.

Among other speakers were J. O. Martin, State president of the Holy Name Society in Virginia; Martin H. Cok, presidentof the northern State section; C. L. Aiello, president of the District of Columbia section, and Patrick J. Haltigan, former president of the Diocesan Union of Baltimore. The program included a number of vocal selections by the quartet from Trinity Catholic Church, of Washington: George H. O'Connor and Ambrose Durkin.

Henry P. Batch presided and introduced the speakers.

Officials Have Parley On Rail Condemnation

R. L. May, president, and Gardner L. Boothe, counsel, of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway, conferred with Assistant Corporation Counsel William A. Roberts yesterday on the condemnation of the company's tracks in the District.

The accounting division of the Public Utilities Commission is checking up on the value of the equipment. When this is completed an agreement as to the price of the tracks will be sought. Should the two agencies not be in accord, the matter probably will go to the courts. The tracks must be cleared away and the terminal moved for the Federal triangle development.

14 SEEK POSTOFFICE JOB IN CUMBERLAND

Civil Service Secretary and Department Official Test Applicants.

ZIHLMAN MAY GET POST

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 15.—Applicants for the postmastership at Cumberland, made vacant by the death of E. Lee Shaw, were questioned today in turn by W. J. Hamacher, secretary of the Fourth Civil Service District, and Charles C. Void, of the Postoffice Department, regarding their education, business training and other qualifications that they might have to fit them for the office.

It is the function of the Civil Service Commission, after it receives the report on all applicants, to file the names of three of the candidates with the Postoffice Department. In turn, one name goes to the President for nomination and confirmation by the United States Senate.

The list of fourteen applicants follows: William W. Brown, Frank Lee Carl, James E. Chappell, Mathew B. Coffey, Charles J. Cumiskey, Harry R. Donnelly, Charles R. McFerran, James Milton Patterson, Clifton F. Shuck, John J. Stump, Charles N. Wilkinson, sr., Bernard B. Young, George G. Young and Albert E. Zihlman.

Edgar Keller, recently appointed county tax collector, also an applicant, withdrew his name. Albert E. Zihlman is a brother of Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, whose term expires March 4. Inasmuch as the late Representative George A. Pearre named his brother, William Pearre, as postmaster to serve two terms, it is considered by a number of Republicans that Mr. Zihlman would have a precedent in obtaining the appointment for his brother should the latter be declared eligible.

MEXICO IS RIGHT.

Senator Ashurst's resolution requesting the President to negotiate with Mexico for the purchase of Lower California and a small portion of Sonora has aroused indignation throughout Mexico. Both the government and people of Mexico scornfully repel any suggestion that the national domain shall be subject to bargain and sale. Their feeling is the same as would be experienced by Americans if a foreign legislator should propose the acquisition of American territory. With pride and self-respect, Mexicans cherish their motherland.

Possibly Senator Ashurst may have desired to elicit from Mexico a contemptuous repudiation of the idea that its territory can be alienated. If so, he was very successful in his effort. Since Arizona objects to the Black Canyon Dam project, a gesture emphasizing Mexico's rights in the Colorado River may not be deemed amiss by the Arizona senator.

That Mexico's rights must be respected ought to be apparent. International law is unmistakably in favor of Mexico's right to demand that the United States, in building the Black Canyon Dam, shall not stop or divert the natural flow of the Colorado River. This rule of international law is thus stated by Oppenheim (Vol. 1, 4th ed., p. 253):

> A state, in spite of its territorial supremacy, is not allowed to alter the natural conditions of its own territory to the disadvantage of the natural conditions of the territory of a neighboring state—for instance, to stop or to divert the flow of a river which runs from its own into neighboring territory.

On page 381 of the same volume Oppenheim enlarges upon this rule of international law, as follows:

> Apart from navigation on rivers, the question of the utilization of the flow of rivers is of importance. * * * The flow of not-national, boundary and international rivers is not within the arbitrary power of one of the riparian states, for it is a rule of international law that no state is allowed to alter the natural conditions of its own territory to the disadvantage of the natural conditions of the territory of a neighboring state. For this reason a state is not only forbidden to stop or to divert the flow of a river which runs from its own to a neighboring state, but likewise to make such use of the water of the river as either causes danger to the neighboring state or prevents it from making proper use of the flow of the river on its part.

If the United States should fail or refuse to recognize Mexico's right to make use of the natural flow of the Colorado River the question would have to be submitted to arbitration. The United States could not honorably refuse to arbitrate this question, and it could not honorably repudiate the arbitral award, which would inevitably be in favor of Mexico.

In view of the manifest desire of the Mexican government and people to cultivate cordial relations with the United States, and in view of the enlightened policy of President Ortiz Rubio, ably supported by Ambassador Tellez, it is more than ever necessary that the United States should refrain from any act that could be construed as unfair to the Mexican nation. Mexico's rights must be respected. The United States is morally bound to reach an understanding acceptable to Mexico in the matter of the Colorado River, before undertaking to construct enormous works that would divert a great part of the flow of the river and thereby deprive Mexico of a natural resource within its own territory.

NO TARIFF ON OIL.

Independent oil operators meeting in Washington have renewed their demand for a tariff on petroleum. Their efforts have repeatedly failed in the past, but the independent operators have convinced themselves that their salvation lies in a tariff on oil, and they persist in making their futile demand.

It is difficult to understand why the independent producers should be pushing their campaign at this time. Figures collected by the Department of Commerce show a drastic reduction of crude oil imports last year. During the first eleven months of 1930 only 57,402,000 barrels of crude were imported, as compared with 73,047,000 barrels during the same period of 1929. Imports in the previous year also decreased.

Even if this foreign oil were shut out, the problem of the independent producers would not be solved. Large companies operating in the United States would merely draw more heavily upon their American wells. The supply of oil under their control is enormous. They would supply the market regardless of a tariff. But such a course would only hasten the exhaustion of oil in this country, and conserve the oil in foreign countries.

During 1930 the oil conservation movement in the United States made notable progress. Production was reduced by about 107,000,000 barrels below the record output of 1929. This does not indicate a failing supply—not yet. Far more petroleum is immediately available now than a year ago. But rigid conservation measures in the principal oil-producing States have caused it to be held under ground. The supply still exceeds the demand, but the trend is in the right direction, and stocks on hand are being reduced.

In spite of the drastic reductions of last year this country still furnishes more than 64 per cent of the world's oil supply from a fraction of the world's reserves. Unless this condition is changed the United States eventually will be without oil and dependent upon foreign nations for its supply. The independent producers, in calling for a tariff on petroleum, are willing to leave the American people to the mercy of foreign oil monopolies. The independents do not consider the welfare of the industry and the country, but only how to get a profit out of their holdings in the least possible time.

Congress will not impose a tariff on petroleum. The administration has pledged its support to the conservation of the Nation's oil reserves.

WASHINGTON MEMORIAL BRIDGE.

The question of a formal name for the gigantic new bridge that has been in course of construction since 1927 over the Hudson River between Fort Washington, N. Y., and Fort Lee, N. J., and which will be opened for use a year hence, has finally been decided. The structure, which will have cost when completed some $70,000,000, is practically a mile in length, and is supported from cables running from towers 635 feet high, or 80 feet higher than the Washington Monument. Gigantic structure that it is, stupendous achievement that its construction represents, the choice of a name was not easily resolved. The Port of New York Authority, under whose direction the undertaking is being carried through, realized that such a structure required a formal title that would be impressive for its dignity, and further, that the bridge would serve as a perpetual and noble memorial to George Washington. The Port Authority consequently decided to name the structure the George Washington Memorial Bridge.

It is entirely appropriate that the bridge should be thus named. It will be opened for traffic during the bicentennial celebration of the birth of George Washington. It links the historic sites of forts that were intimately associated with Washington when he was commander in chief of the Continental Armies. From Fort Lee, on the Jersey shore, Gen. Washington watched the progress of the battle of Harlem Heights that raged around Fort Washington, on the Manhattan shore. The American forces were defeated in that battle, but the defeat has gone down in history as one of the most glorious engagements ever participated in by American forces.

It is not easy to understand the opposition of certain New York newspapers to the selection of the name for this bridge. They may be disappointed that the names they favored were not adopted by the Port Authority, but surely they can not honestly suggest that a more pleasing or a more appropriate title could have been selected.

In deciding to name the monumental structure now in course of construction over the Hudson the George Washington Memorial Bridge, the Port of New York Authority takes a lead in one of the most important aspects of the plans for celebrating the bicentennial of George Washington's birth. The Federal Commission has asked States, cities and other political subdivisions throughout the country to name bridges, boulevards and important public works in honor of the first President as a feature of the celebration. In this way the name of the Father of His Country will be impressed upon coming generations. New York does well to take the lead by attaching the name of Washington to the greatest bridge in the world.

THE BLACK TOM CASE.

When the German-American Mixed Claims Commission absolved Germany of all guilt in connection with the Black Tom and Kingsland explosions in 1916 and 1917 the country was taken by surprise. Counsel for the United States brought together such a quantity of evidence tending to show that these explosions were a direct result of German sabotage that a decision in favor of this country was generally expected. The commission found the evidence insufficient. But counsel for the United States decline to accept that decision as final. A petition for rehearing in the Black Tom case has been filed, and a similar petition in the Kingsland case is being prepared.

Attorneys who have been closely connected with these two cases pronounce the decisions indefensible. The commission found that German agents had been sent to the United States with instructions to destroy munitions and munitions plants, and that many of them were furnished with incendiary devices for that purpose. It was further established that these agents did engage in sabotage while the United States still maintained its neutrality. In the Kingsland case the German agent who engineered the plot confessed, but the commission refused to believe him because an alleged accomplice would not incriminate himself.

Germany has withheld important documents that would, in all probability, clear up the points of controversy in both cases. When the United States has been able to prove the contents of a document the German government has been willing to produce it. But in no instance where the contents could not otherwise be proved has Germany submitted the documents called for. Notes and other valuable documentary evidence have been withheld upon the most flimsy pretexts.

It is obvious that there has not been a fair and unprejudiced hearing of these cases. Apparently the decisions were rendered in an effort to smooth over feelings of hostility that were developed during the war. In view of the circumstances, it appears that politics and diplomacy have played too large a part in the decisions of the commission. Instead of relieving hostility toward Germany such a decision fosters it.

A rehearing should be granted and conducted on the basis of fact, including the evidence in German documents that have been withheld.

BATTLESHIPS AND UNEMPLOYMENT

By Commander HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. Navy.

(This is the last of a series of four articles.)

The Battle of Jutland taught many lessons in ship design. The British hastened to increase the defensive strength of their battle cruisers against long-range shellfire by the thickening of their horizontal armor. The narrow escape of the Marlborough, which was hit by a single torpedo, confirmed the underwater weaknesses of the British battleships—already indicated by the sinking of the Audacious by a mine. To the ships already built they attached what was virtually another underwater hull—called bulges or blisters. In vessels built after Jutland increased emphasis was given to both armor and underwater protection. They considered this new construction so greatly improved that there was a disposition for a time to consider it in an entirely distinct category: post-Jutland ships.

After Jutland a new menace to the capital ship made its appearance, the airplane with its bombs. These bombs might either penetrate the decks and horizontal armor and explode in the ship's vitals or it might detonate in the water close to the hull, thus causing leaks and possibly throwing out of line the propeller shafts and rudder. These threats made necessary a further thickening of the horizontal armor, an additional strengthening of the underwater hull and the installation of a battery of antiaircraft guns. The use of airplanes for observing naval gunfire increased greatly the distance at which it could be made effective. This caused a desire to elevate the turret guns to a greater angle so that they could fire at increased ranges.

To allow for these necessary modifications in capital ships the Washington Treaty permitted the addition of 3,000 tons to each ship. The British have modernized all the fifteen ships allowed by the London Treaty, except the Barham. Of our fifteen battleships seven have been modernized. The Navy Department has announced its desire to modernize the next three, Mississippi, New Mexico and Idaho. These vessels were laid down in 1915. Thus they are pre-Jutland ships. Their modernization will bring us close to parity with the British in capital ships. It is essential that it be commenced at an early date.

Our remaining battleships—five in number—were laid down between 1916 and 1919. While these vessels have considerably more defensive strength than their predecessors, the modernization of two, and probably five, will ultimately prove necessary. This will permit us to equalize the advantage which the Rodney and Nelson now give the British. It will also further an agreement increasing the life of battleships to 25 or even 30 years with resultant great economy.

The building of naval vessels is an important remedy for the unemployment situation. Into naval construction go every kind of material and workmanship. It involves every industry and every section of the country. For example, take the new 10,000-ton cruisers, Nos. 32, 34 and 36. These ships are being built in the Government navy yards at New York, Philadelphia and Puget Sound. The construction of these vessels gives steady employment to a large number of workingmen over a period of three or four years. In addition to the men employed on the ships themselves in the above three navy yards much of the equipment with which they are supplied and the material from which they are fabricated provide employment for workmen in other sections of the country.

Much of the equipment comes from other navy yards. For instance:

Guns—Navy Yard, Washington, D. C.

Torpedoes—Torpedo Station, Newport, R. I.

Anchor chains and cordage—Navy Yard, Boston, Mass.

Boats and metal furniture—Navy Yard, Norfolk, Va.

The rest of the equipment and all of the material used in the fabrication of the ships is obtained from private contractors. I have before me a list showing the more important contracts. It is far too long to include here, but it may be of interest to list the States from which the more important items are furnished. Here are a few:

Steel—Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, New York, West Virginia.

Rivets—Ohio, Illinois, Pennsylvania.

Wood—Massachusetts, Oregon.

Main engines—Pennsylvania.

Boilers—Ohio, New Jersey.

Motors—New Jersey.

Optical equipment—New York, New Jersey.

Compasses—New York, Massachusetts.

Powder tanks—New Jersey, Pennsylvania.

Wire—New Jersey, New York, Illinois.

Searchlights—New York.

Electrical equipment for fire control—New York.

Telephones—Illinois.

This list includes only the main factory of each contractor. In some cases they have factories in twelve States and may have distributed their work among all of them. In addition to the States already listed the following may, therefore, be added as probable beneficiaries of the ship building program: Tennessee, Michigan, Connecticut, Kentucky, Indiana, Alabama, California and Missouri.

If we carry this study a step farther we will see that the raw material for the various manufactured articles provided by the contractors come from still other States. And to bring the raw material to the contractors the railroads and shipping of even other States are required. To mention only one example, iron ore must be mined in Minnesota or Wisconsin and carried by Great Lakes steamers to the Eastern States to be made into steel. Thus, directly or indirectly, the construction of naval vessels provide employment for workmen of every trade and every section of the country.

INDOOR GOLF DRIVES.

The chief forms of miniature golf have experienced a sudden and rather unexpected slump in London, according to the Christian Science Monitor. But in their place has appeared a new form of indoor golf, concerned with driving instead of putting, which bids fair to outshine its predecessors in popularity. Models of dog kennels, waterfalls and bird cages are not a necessary part of the equipment for this new pastime. The player merely takes his stance in front of a large green tunnel, imagines himself on the first tee of his favorite course and "has a crack down the middle of the fairway." The ball travels into the tunnel and then round and round its coils until it drops, if a perfect drive, into the "par" hole. If not driven hard or straight enough it falls into one of the other six holes according to its momentum and accuracy. The par hole represents roughly 250 yards and the others range down to a 70-yard "wuff." The inside of the tunnel is made of wire netting covered with artificial grass.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE MURDERED MISER.

They'd killed him for his pocketbook
And left him with that ghastly look,
A poor, dead miser, terrified,
Who, clinging to his gold, had died.

Next day the servants of the law
Merely "another murder" saw.
"Misers," I heard an old head say,
"Are very apt to die that way."

"Another murder," so they said
Who looked upon him, cold and dead,
And yet, somehow, I wondered why
So plainly he had feared to die.

For money he had died before
A dozen different deaths, or more;
And yet so terrified appeared
When the last death remaining neared.

All other joys long since he'd lost
And never whimpered at their cost.
He'd given up friends and pride and place
Without such terror on his face.

Money had murdered him before
The robbers ever found his door;
But the last death gold had to bring
Left him a terror-stricken thing.

The Man Who Controls the Power House Can Decide How to Use the Power.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN a man of ordinary intelligence says that the normal individual has complete control of his life, so that he can be happy or unhappy, whipped or unwhipped, enslaved by evil habits or free of them, soured by malice or happily rid of unpleasant memories, there will be many to question both his judgment and his sanity.

The cynical and the shallow will say: "That is Pollyanna stuff designed to fool simpletons."

Yet it is literally and exactly true. It is a scientific truth as easily demonstrable as the fact that water runs down hill.

Almost two thousand years ago the greatest of teachers said: "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

For nineteen centuries the world saw in that statement nothing more than a reference to the obvious fact that a man's character is made and measured by his secret thoughts and not by his words or his outward appearance.

Then men began to develop a new science—the study of their own minds—and at once the ancient truth appeared as the most significant fact in human experience.

As a man thinks, so is he.

And a man can think what he will.

There is the whole truth in two sentences.

Make no mistake about it. Man's ability to control his thoughts is so easily demonstrable that a child can prove it. And just as easily demonstrated is the truth that a man is what his thoughts make him.

Force yourself to think of good things to eat and soon you will hunger for them. Force yourself to think of a man who once wronged you and soon your countenance will harden with hate. Keep your thoughts on the blind and crippled and destitute and you are filled with pity; keep your thoughts on your own misfortunes and you are filled with discontent.

A man who is trying to quit smoking has little chance of success while his thoughts are fixed on the pleasure a smoke would afford; but let him understand that he is facing death and he will think so constantly of health and the joy of living that tobacco no longer will interest him.

If your thoughts fix themselves on revenge, you are a potential murderer; if then by an effort of will you fix your thoughts on some fine adventure, the new interest makes you decent again.

When men's minds went West, the ox teams soon followed.

PRO AND CON

Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great Show, "Politics," Staged in Congress.

Democratic Tip to Mr. Shouse.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

When he (Mr. Shouse) asserts that the Democrats will take the Government two years from now he indulges in the pastime of political prophecy which is well understood as nothing more than a pastime. The next presidential election is nearly two years away. No one knows what the conditions will be which will determine the result of that election. Mr. Shouse could well afford to wait at least until the campaign is under way before beginning the practice of claiming everything, a practice always resorted to by the campaign managers and candidates of both parties.

It would seem that Mr. Shouse might better employ himself in undertaking to see that the Democrats improve the great opportunity which he says they won. Real improvement of that opportunity will be the best assurance that they will take the Government in 1932. So far, since the present session of Congress met, they have made no headway in this direction. On the contrary, where they have joined issues with the President they have strengthened him rather than the Democratic party. Mr. Shouse himself says "it will not be helpful in the long run to rush into a building program that has no justification in the broad economy of government." Yet the Democrats in Congress are not behind in the stampede to raid the Treasury.

Their party will be judged in 1932 largely on the record it makes between now and the election of that year. Of course, it is not fair to consider its record now, before it is made. The new Congress to which Democrats were elected last November has not yet even met. But the Democrats of the present Congress should not ignore the fact that their own record will enter into the equation.

Piles Up Its Own Troubles.

Detroit News.

"Faith," says Dean Inge, "makes most of the mountains it has to move." We believe this is even truer of Congress.

Mr. Hoover Is Right.

Morristown Jerseyman.

President Hoover is on solid ground in refusing the demands of the Senate that he submit his power board nominations over again, after these nominations already had been confirmed by the Senate. Looked at in one light this whole dispute seems to be a complicated legal question. It is not a legal question at all. It is a political question, and the reason why it is brought forward and urged is because the power question is to be made the issue in the next presidential campaign. The man who is forcing that issue to the front is the Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor of New York. The plan that he is trying to make is one that may place the President in the position of defending the electric power companies, now the pet devils of the Democracy.

Reminder of Andy Johnson.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The controversy between Mr. Hoover and the Senate over recent appointments to the Federal Power Commission revives a conflict between the President and the upper house of Congress that began in the time of President Andrew Johnson. The original conflict formed the basis of President Johnson's impeachment. It resulted in the tenure of office act, passed over his head by Congress and requiring the President to obtain the consent of the Senate to the dismissal of any official whose appointment the Senate had confirmed.

Times Change.

Atlanta Constitution.

Things are in the reverse. It is the house of Congress that now cools off hot stuff coming from the Senate. That's news for G. Washington.

Profane Silence.

What President Hoover thinks of the Senate and what the Senate thinks of President Hoover wouldn't look well in print.

Red Cross Funds Must Be Raised Now if Starvation Is to Be Prevented—Delay Will Mean Giving Stones Instead of Bread.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why tangle up the need for immediate Red Cross relief work with the "Chest" drive? Why delay the relief of starving people in the drought area until nearly a month from now? If you are hungry today and famished tomorrow, how like a stone instead of bread will a promise of relief a month from now appear to you! I am a very small contributor, but I hope many will do what I did, send their mite to the Red Cross NOW.

Nation-Wide Government Ownership Propaganda at Work—a Menace to All Industry.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Behind the attempt in the Senate to invade the rights of the Executive by attempting to recall for reconsideration the nominations to the Federal Power Commission already confirmed, an attempt repelled by the President in a manner heartening to millions of his countrymen, there is clearly evident the hand of our old friend, "The Public Ownership League of America."

There lies before me a copy of a mimeographed circular letter issued from the national office of the league under date of December 30, 1930. The letter is headed, "Emergency, Immediate Action, Please," and calls upon "all public ownership secretaries, members and friends" to get busy with a view to getting the Senate to reconsider its action in confirming the appointments to the Federal Power Commission.

Thus, several days before the impudent vote was had in the Senate, there was a nation-wide movement under way having for its object the passage of the motion which President Hoover has so well exposed. There could hardly be a clearer demonstration of the fact that the Senate resolution was part and parcel of a national propaganda in favor of Government ownership and control of industry. And that way lies disaster and ruin for the American people.

Looking over the names of the vice presidents of "The Public Ownership League of America" I note the names of four members of the United States Senate, namely, Messrs. La Follette, Howell, Davis and Dill. Thus the organized movement directed against American industry, and having for its aim the establishment of a system of industrial subjection to political manipulation and management, is directly led by men holding office in the Senate of the United States. In the circumstances, it is well that there should be counter propaganda, and that all who believe that Government ownership and management of industry will prove harmful to the Nation should make their views known and their influence felt.

The attack is at present directed against the power industry, not because that industry is vulnerable to just criticism to a greater degree than other industries, but simply because the extent to which it is subject to regulation by Government agencies makes the attack easier for the enemies of our industrial system. The menace of Government ownership is directed equally against all forms of industry.

As on so many occasions in our history, demagoguery rules the Senate, and the defense of the Constitution depends upon the President. In his splendid rebuke to the impudence of the Senate President Hoover has manifested a strength and vigor of leadership that is most heartening.

Against Public Policy and Sound Economics to Close Barber Shops on Sunday.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I hope you will permit me to submit the following in regard to the Senate bill to compel District barber shops to close on Sunday. I am a trade unionist, and, besides, I am personally opposed to Sunday work. But I think the special kind of work the barber has to do should make him an exception.

The barber is one of our most important public servants. As such, it does not seem like asking too much that he should shave the public when the public finds it most convenient to be shaved.

Nothing makes a common citizen more satisfied with himself than his Sunday morning shave after a hard week's work. And that is all to the good, since good citizenship is what we are after.

Thousands of hotel guests must be shaved on Sunday morning. Do you think the hotels won't find a way to have them shave? If this bill should become law there will be bootleg barbering. Barbers will not complain of being overworked, as they can always find plenty of willing substitutes. Besides, if the Sunday morning trade gets into the habit of shaving itself, it will cause an increase in unemployment, which will be another bad break for the public welfare.

Washington Monument Should Not Be Too Much "Adorned."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The common sense advice to leave well enough alone was never more apt than in reference to talk about improving the looks of the Washington Monument. Surrounded by a broad expanse of lawn, with not too many trees, its appearance is nobly in keeping with the popular conception of the Father of His Country.

Those who seriously think its setting can be markedly improved are no doubt competent as well as public spirited and patriotic. Yet I can readily see that artistic specialists might add ornamental details which, though lovely in themselves, would spoil the unique effect by which the Manument is characterised in contrast with other memorials. Better leave its surroundings as they are, with such minor changes as may seem necessary, in my opinion. And I have an idea that public opinion, if given expression, would be to the same effect.

HOUSE VOTES WAR DEPARTMENT FUNDS

LaGuardia Loses His Fight on Schools Enforcing Military Training.

TOTAL IS $446,024,000

(Associated Press.)

The sixth major supply bill carrying $446,024,000 for the War Department for the next fiscal year was passed yesterday by the House after a spirited fight over compulsory military training.

The measure includes $60,000,000 for rivers and harbors improvements and $35,000,000 for Mississippi flood control. It now goes to the Senate. No annual appropriation has yet reached the statute books from this session.

By 162 to 50 the House rejected an amendment by Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, to prohibit the use of Army funds on R. O. T. C. units in colleges and universities, not essentially military, which make the training compulsory. LaGuardia asserted the issue presented in his amendment was that of compulsory military training, but his successful opponents led by Representative Barbour (Republican), California, in charge of the bill, contended it was unwarranted interference with the rights of States and private institutions to outline educational programs.

LaGuardia also lost an attempt to prevent use of the funds for military training in high schools.

The House, however, adopted a provision to prohibit the Army from buying butter substitutes.

Of the appropriation, $334,956,000 was for military activities and $111,067,000 for nonmilitary purposes.

In the nonmilitary activities, $254,000 was set aside to operate the Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoals.

Stobbs Bill Is Signed By President Hoover

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday signed the Stobbs bill designed to clarify the Jones-Stalker prohibition law. The bill would amend the Jones law limiting the maximum penalty to $500 or six months jail sentence in cases where the sale of not more than one gallon of liquor is involved, provided the defendant has not been convicted of a prohibition violation within two years.

It also would permit trial before United States commissioner for minor violations unless the defendant asks a jury trial.

Tribe of Igorotes Wants To Enlist in U. S. Army

A tribe of Igorotes, erstwhile wild men and head hunters in the Philippine Islands, wants to join the United States Army.

The War Department yesterday made public the application for enlistment that was received by the commanding officer at Camp John Hay, in the mountainous region of the islands. It was from the chief of the Kalinga branch of the Igorote Tribe and read as follows:

"Dear Lieutenant: I have the honor to notify you that we, the people of Kalinga, would like to enter the recruiting company of your division. All of us have been students in the public schools.

"We quitted from school and we would like to enter the Army. Since no one yet from the subprovince of Kalinga entered the job, the following would like very much to be enlisted in that line."

South Wales Coal Dispute Settled

150,000 Men Had Been Idle Since January 1 in Mining Row.

London, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—The dispute in the South Wales coal fields, which has kept 150,000 men idle since January 1, was settled tonight.

Announcement of the settlement came suddenly after many hours of weary negotiations between government officials and representatives of both miners and mine owners. During most of that time the prospects for a settlement looked extremely gloomy.

The owners tonight accepted the terms of a new compromise agreement, which was not made public, and miners' representatives also signed although they will have to go through the formality of recommending the accord to the South Wales Miners' Federation at Cardiff.

Relations With Panama To Be Continued by U.S.

(Associated Press.)

The American Government will continue diplomatic relations with President Designate Alfaro's administration in Panama on the same basis that it did with the administration of former President Arosemena.

The State Department is expected to take the attitude toward Alfaro that his administration is a constitutional successor to that of the former administration. Thus the question of extending new recognition formally would not arise.

Neville Soon Will Depart To Far East

Diplomat, at Home From Japan, With Wife Has Been Much Feted.

ONE of the ablest diplomats in the foreign service of the United States, Mr. Edwin L. Neville, counselor of the American embassy in Japan, who, with Mrs. Neville, has been in Washington for several weeks on a leave of absence, will shortly bring his visit to a close.

On leave for the first time in nearly four years, Mr. Neville and his attractive wife have been the center of a grist of small and informal parties.

They will leave next Thursday for San Francisco, whence they will sail January 30 on the President Lincoln for Tokyo. Returning with them will be their two sons, Edwin and Richard, who will resume their studies at the American School in the Japanese capital.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Neville have been staying at the Anchorage, on their arrival here they sent their sons to visit the latter's sister, Mrs. Reginald Vickers, who lives at the Plains, Va.

The boys have lost no time from their studies during their visit, for while staying with their aunt they have been attending the Hill School in Middleburg, a few miles away.

Mr. Neville is completing 23 years of activity in the international field, most of which has been in the Far East, on which he ranks as a "class A" authority. Since 1907, he has held a dozen different posts in the consular and diplomatic branches at various cities in Japan, Korea and China. Incidentally, Mr. Neville speaks Japanese with fluency.

Louws Show African Chinks At Reception

Beautiful White Blooms Imported for Affair Largely Attended.

The Minister of South Africa and Mrs. Louw were at home yesterday to a large group of friends, including high officials in Capital life, many of them members of the Diplomatic Corps, and an interesting contingent of fashionable Washington. The Minister and Mrs. Louw received in the drawing rooms of the Legation, Mrs. Louw wearing a crepe de chine gown with floral pattern.

The drawing rooms were exotic with a wealth of white flowers, chincherinchees, often called "chinks," indigenous to South Africa and imported specially for the reception.

Almost ethereal in appearance, the flowers, unusual in this part of the world, attracted much attention from the groups of visitors who seemed interested in the fragile blossoms which resemble the double narcissi, but have no green leaves. To further enhance the waxlike appearance of the flowers, and to create the illusion of clusters as they grow on the mountains and hills around Cape Town, Mrs. Louw arranged them in bowls without the use of greenery.

Strangely enough these flowers have no fragrance, which brings to mind the saying regarding South Africa: "Her flowers have no fragrance; her birds no song; and her rivers no water."

In far away Cape Town the "chinks" begin to bloom in spring time, which means September and October in that land below the equator. Although seldom transported to America, many thousands of the blossoms are sent to the floral marts of London each season. Another variety of these flowers is flaming orange in color, but these are seldom exported.

Among those at the reception were the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Tellez, the Ambassador of France and Mme. Claudel, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson, Justice James R. McReynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, the Minister of the Irish Free State, Mr. Michael MacWhite; the Minister of Austria and Mme. Prochnick, the Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Brown, Mrs. William E. Brock, Representative and Mrs. H. St. George Tucker, Representative and Mrs. Carroll L. YOUR NAME
What Does It Mean?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family name "Grant" has come down to us from several quite different sources. In the great majority of cases it is merely a variation of "Grand." "Grand" is of French and ultimately of Latin origin, and means "great" and "big." It was first applied as a nickname to persons of great size. In some cases it has been adopted by Irish families whose original name was the Celtic "Granda," which means "ugly." "Grant" has been very common in Scotland since very early days. The name was brought to Ireland in the thirteenth century by a Norman family which settled in Kilkenny, Tipperary, Waterford and Cork. However, most of the Grants in Ulster are members of a Scottish clan, some of whom settled there at an early date. The name occurs with great frequency in the Hundred Rolls. Two of its variations in that document are "Graunt" and "Graunte."

The family name "Coverley" (also spelled "Coverly") is derived from the Old English "cofa-leah," which may be translated "the cove-lea" or "the cave-lea." It implies that the persons who were first so called lived at a meadow near a cave or cove. A certain Malger de Coverle and a Bartholomew de Coverle are mentioned in the Hundred Rolls.

The family name "Lenain" has always been common in France. It means "the dwarf," and was obviously first given as a nickname.

The family name "Fiedler" (also spelled "Fiedeler" and "Viedler") is derived from the middle high German "videlaere." It means "the fiddler," and denotes the occupation of the persons who were first so called.

The personal name "Nora" is ultimately of Latin origin, and means "honor."

Dare Interprets the Mode

A coat to grace any afternoon occasion is this one of black, trimmed luxuriantly with black breitschwantz. (Courtesy of Molyneux, Paris.)

Paris, Jan. 15.

ALL modern jewelry is important, of course, necklaces being far in the lead. Which is as it should be, because of the attention being given to new necklines and surrounding accessories. And can we ever have enough of them, I wonder—these modern chains and pendants that copy old jewelry so exactly?

It is a far cry from the necklaces of glass or china or polished wood beads of the past few years to the elegance and dignity of today's reproductions. They are, in almost every case, exact copies of fine old pieces—and so appropriate to wear with our clothes that are designed after past centuries.

Heavy gold has come into its own again in these necklaces—and cameos and enameled lockets showing flowers on a black background. 'N' bas reliefs and antique carved ivories. I have seen delightful copies of eighteenth century jewelry, with tassels and bowknots in gold, combined sometimes with coral and crystals, and with gold filigree clasps. Silver and crystal still has its own charm, and silver and brilliants.

Fashionable necklaces worn with black are of turquoise, jade, gold, coral or crystal, and for brown ensembles I saw a great deal of dark amber, topaz, rubies and carnelians.

If you exercise a little care in picking out jewelry to harmonize with the period of your costume you'll be overjoyed at the charming result.

An afternoon coat, such as the one I show today, with its slim, straight lines and luxurious fur trimming, is always a thing to be admired, and, whenever the family fortunes permit—possessed. Molyneux has interpreted these features marvelously in this afternoon coat of black material, which, aside from its shaw collar and wide cuffs of black breitschwantz depends for adornment only on the unusual hemline and stitching.

Don't start out on the rainy day without the cover to your umbrella. It isn't done this year. The new covers are so smart that you will want your umbrella encased in one of them when the sun peaks through the clouds. You will see from the sketch up in the corner of today's illustrations just how irresistible they are.

Have you the lovely, firm, distinctly rounded bust demanded by fashion and necessary to the proper wearing of the modern gown? If you haven't, I promise you that you may have!

No matter how poorly developed you may be—no matter how weak and soft the muscles have become, this truly marvelous brassiere that all Parisiennes are wearing will remold your bust.

The only requirements are that you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Dpartment of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet telling you, using the simple technical terms, how to make the brassiere; that you have a little patience until the first one is made, and make all the other ones for the rest of your life from that first one; that you wear the brassiere consistently, even to sleep in if necessary. And I positively promise you that you will be pleased and benefit a thousandfold in beauty!

And you'll find many interesting hints, also, in Dare's weekly fashion letter. It's always in The Sunday Washington Post.

Au revoir.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

LILIES OF THE VALLEY.

WHAT could be lovelier than a pot or window box of lilies of the valley for the last week in February or the first week in March? Well, it isn't a hard matter to have these lovely little blossoms at this time, and I hope you will try the experiment.

The lily of the valley, if forced into bloom in the greenhouse by florists for cut flowers in winter, is grown entirely from freshly imported roots—or pips, as they are called. These pips, imported from Holland, make very much larger flowers than can be grown from the roots of the common varieties that we have in our garden. Nevertheless, our common lily of the valley can be brought into flower in the house if proper attention and care be given it.

The lilies can not be forced into bloom with success until after the roots have been thoroughly frozen, after which you can lift them carefully in a mat, like a small sod.

If frozen solid when you lift them, so much the better. Place the entire sod in a pot or box, using any common soil, and place them in a sunny window. Do not cover the tops with additional soil; they should remain the way they were when they were dug. In lifting them be careful to select the strongest bulbs, and, as I have said before, be very careful not to tear them apart.

After planting, keep them very wet and as warm as you can, and they will soon begin to send up blooming stalks. These should open in about five weeks, according to the temperature of the room. The later in the season you try to force them the more successful you will be, as naturally the lily of the valley is entitled to a long period of rest. The first week in February is really the time to lift them.

If you will try the experiment of forcing these lilies in a conservatory or house, it will pay you next year to prepare beforehand by marking with a stake the exact location in the garden of the strongest flowers of your patch, so that when you come to dig them for this purpose you will have more flowering and fewer leafy shoots—for bear in mind, the thick heavy pips make flowers; the smaller ones produce nothing but leaves.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Ineffective Punishment.

Children understand quite well the difference between punishment which descends upon them because their elders are irritable and vengeful and that which is given to teach them to behave better. They know and respond accordingly.

Most of us are much more likely to find fault and to punish when we ourselves are tired or in a bad mood. When we are feeling well and gay we pass lightly over real naughtiness. It is not easy to be consistent, but the more nearly we approximate consistency in punishment the more likely it is to be effective.

A child will always take a chance. If yesterday his disobedience escaped punishment he is likely to be disobedient again.

The sensitive child is especially hurt by inconsistency in discipline. He becomes chronically anxious lest the smallest slip on his part bring down the lightning which experience has taught him may strike any time and probably never twice in the same place.

He resents, too, the fact that he is so entirely at the mercy of the whims of some one who is willing to make him miserable for no good reason that he can see.

Such a parent is apt to lose his child's respect and a good share of his affection. The child becomes uncooperative. Why should he try to please a conscienceless grown-up? He learns, too, that a little skillful lying will spare him a good deal of unpleasantness.

If you must punish, be fair and reasonable. Be consistent and cultivate self-discipline. Refrain from making your child bear the brunt of your bad moods.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

A SAVING SENSE OF HUMOR.

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD: I have a feeling that you will help me as you have so many others. I have been married seventeen years and have three lovely children, one girl and two boys. And I believe the most disagreeable husband in the world. He positively never speaks a word to the children or me except to find fault, and he can find fault with anything.

If we go to Sunday school we are hypocrites. And there is a row. If we do not go to Sunday school we are heathens. And there is a row. If I take the children to his people I am going there to talk against him. And there is a row. If I take them to my people we are slighting his people. And there is a row.

If he sees me sitting at the front window he accuses me of watching for somebody. And for similar reason will not permit me to go to a show or a dance. Yet when I ask him to take me out he refuses on the grounds that I am a sight and he does not care to be seen with me on the street. This is, of course, absurd, as I am up-to-date, have black, wavy hair, natural color, a good figure, I am five foot four and weigh 115. I am invited everywhere and am well liked—except by the gentleman who happens to be my husband.

He has repeatedly asked me to leave his home as he no longer cares to see me around. Naturally, I have no intention of doing any such thing, as I have too much respect for my children and their rights to relinquish them so easily to an ill-natured man, who has just happened to go sour unexpectedly.

But what shall I do? There is no way of stopping his surliness or his disagreeable effect upon the children's home life. But could I in some way head off some of his endless nagging? If so, how? Should I build a pen in the back yard and move into it? Just what should an attractive and modern woman do when she finds herself no longer attractive in the eyes of her lord and master?

CLARA BELLE.

Just preserve the rare sense of humor with which you seem to be blessed; enjoy your children; go where you please as often as you please and show this old grump that he is a small part of a very pleasant world. And give him more vegetables and fresh fruit—for his liver.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 16 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7:45 p. m.

For those engaged in commercial or literary work, the planetary aspects of January 16 are encouraging. In trade, things will take a decided turn for the better. In artistic effort, there will be sensed inspiration and imagination. Eventide promises to awaken emotion.

A child born on this January 16 will be, although having a decided will of its own, gentle and considerate. Persistency will characterize it in after life. Not the persistency that bores, but that which, almost unperceived, gets there all the time.

Your youth, if you were born on a January 16, did not reveal any of the traits that your adulthood have displayed. You were indolent, inconsiderate of others, and your bumptiousness was the despair of all those who were interested in you. Relatives and friends considered you impossible. No sooner, however, had you reached the age of discretion than you underwent a complete metamorphis. You "found yourself." Plodding perseverance replaced laziness; unselfishness and sympathy were substituted for lack of thought for others, and a laudable humility has eradicated all memories of vanity and conceit.

Life has many rewards in store for you. It also has its sorrows. You will take your rewards unexultingly, and your sorrows unflinchingly. Success will not turn your head and disappointment will not kill your spirit.

You are shrewd and an excellent judge of character, and, in addition, posseas a good knowledge of value. Externals are disregarded by you, and a diamond in the rough is as quickly and accurately appraised by you as one well cut and polished. You are thoroughly practical, and, be you man or woman, never allow emotion to ride roughshod over cool, sane judgment. Your home life will be serene and harmonious, and you will never lose your youthful spirit and outlook.

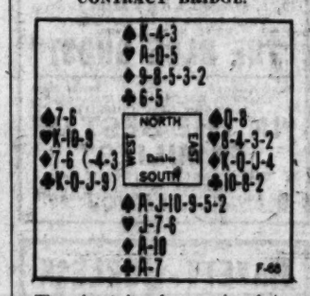
WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.



The above hand was played in a recent Contract Bridge Progressive Duplicate game; and while the various Declarers did not have so much trouble with the bidding, there were some who went wrong with the play. Two Spades was the opening bid for South. A few of the Wests ventured three Clubs, but most of them did not. However, that did not affect North's bid. Whether West bid three Clubs or passed, North with 3 raisers (1 in Spades, 1½ in Hearts and ½ for the Club doubleton) bid four Spades and that ended the contracting.

In the play West at all tables led the King of Clubs which was won by South's Ace. At most tables South then led the Ace of Spades and to trick 3 the Jack. At some tables the Jack was finessed and, of course, that finesse resulted unfortunately; but generally the Jack was covered by the King (there being nine Spades in the two hands and the Declarer playing for an even break) and the Queen fell. After that some of the Declarers led a Diamond to put South in the lead once more and then led a Heart from the South hand for the finesse. Although the finesse won and the Diamond was continued, East took the Diamond, led the Ten of Clubs which West did not cover; East then led a Heart, with the result that the adversaries made one Heart, one Diamond and one Club, the Declarer of course getting game.

At the tables at which the hand was played perfectly, an extra trick was won with ease. The Heart finesse was not tried as in the above described play, but a second Diamond was led which, of course, East won. East then captured his Club trick and next led a Heart which was taken by dummy's Queen. Dummy then led another Diamond and South was careful to take the force with a trump higher than the Deuce. Dummy was placed in the lead with the Ace of Hearts, a fourth Diamond led again trumped high by South, and then South's Deuce of trumps was led, dummy winning with the Trey, and dummy's fifth Diamond now established enabled South to discard a Heart and consequently to make five-odd.

At the tables at which that happened, they scored 50 points more than the tables that merely made game—an accession to the score well worth having.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

HARVARD BEETS.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

"Sweet-sour" beets, they are sometimes called. Harvard beets are not only tasty but colorful and attractive to look at, and because of the vinegar used in the sauce, they take the place of a relish. The Bureau of Home Economics tells how to make them.

6 medium-sized beets.
1 teaspoon cornstarch.
½ teaspoon salt.
½ cup vinegar.
2 tablespoons butter or other fat.

Wash the beets, cook them in boiling water until tender, remove the skins, and cut the beets into thin slices or cubes. Mix the sugar and the cornstarch and salt. Add the vinegar, and let the sauce boil for five minutes, stirring constantly. Add the fat. Pour the sauce over the beets. Let them stand for a few minutes to absorb the sweet-sour flavor of the sauce. For variety 2 tablespoons freshly grated horseradish may be added just before serving.

This Clinic is Real

DR. R. V. PIERCE organized this Clinic in Buffalo in the "70's" and at the same time he put up a vegetable tonic in ready-to-use form which he had prescribed in thousands of cases with wonderful results—this he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the safest tonic for delicate systems because it is made of roots and barks, without alcohol. A strong, healthy body depends upon the right number of rich, red blood cells. It is dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal. If you tire easily, lack pep, if your skin is not clear, if your appetite is poor—you owe it to yourself to try this tonic of Dr. Pierce's. Your appetite will then pick up, your whole body will feel the invigorating effect, you will have redder blood and gain in vim, vigor and vitality. Ask your druggist for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

One who has tried this famous medicine said:

"When I feel that my system is weak and rundown, appetite gone, and I am nervous and unable to get a good night's sleep, I always take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and find that it is the only remedy that seems to hit the spot. It has never failed to do just what it is advertised to do, and I would always recommend it to anyone in a rundown condition."—Albert Carr, 1423 Parian Ave., Clarksburg, W. Va.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

CHAPTER XIII.

Gen. Wood's instructions as military governor of Cuba left him practically a free agent.

"I want you to go down there to get the people ready for a republican form of government," President McKinley had said. "I leave the details of procedure to you. Give them a good school system, try to straighten out their courts and put them on their feet as best you can. We want to do all we can for them, and to get out of the island as soon as we safely can."

His task had been difficult in Santiago, especially at the beginning, but what he faced in Havana was vastly more intricate and exacting. In Santiago the problem was the elementary problem of the parent—to feed the hungry, heal the sick; to wash a people behind the ears, slick up its hair and send them to school. The population was rural or "small town;" in the main unsophisticated and simple-hearted.

The Habaneros were otherwise. The lower classes had all the volatile emotionalism of the Latin mob; the cultivated minority, Spaniard and Cuban alike, was cynical and suspicious. Whatever sentiments of gratitude the Cubans had felt a year and a half previous had long evaporated in the apprehension that these crusaders from the North had chased the infidels away merely to clutch the pearl for themselves.

The Cubans recognized that the streets were cleaner than of old and smells fewer, but those matters were frills in their minds. They were themselves immune to the fevers and could not see why they should be turned upside down in the sacred cause of sanitation to save the lives of a few tourists. They heard much tall talk about the great things the knights of the New World were going to accomplish, but when they saw that what these self-conscious idealists were actually doing was to perpetuate many of the most objectionable practices of the Spaniards, they began to speak of "usurpers" and wonder whether the substitution of an Anglo-Saxon for a Latin in the seat of the autocrat was any particular improvement.

Cleanliness Thought Frills.

Men who had favored annexation to the United States a year previous went over to the independence party, and hotheads among the Spanish and Cuban elements began to fraternize and drink to racial solidarity and the confusion of the Yankee.

Into this devil's brew, American politicians thrust a fat finger, and stirred, for the greater glory of the Democratic party or the Republican party or the sacred cause of sugar or antiimperialism.

Havana Up Early for Welcome.

Havana, December 20, 1899. Six in the morning. Guns boom a major general's salute as the steamship, bright with bunting, glides past the old Morro. Tugs push out from the wharves. Gen. Chaffee, Gen. Humphrey, Col. Bliss, Col. Hugh L. Scott, "Gen." Eates Rathbone, director of posts, steam out to greet the new governor. Cuban committees swarm, everywhere, men of every faction, united for once. The Mayor of Havana is there with all his council, the civil governor of the province, deputations from all the city departments, representatives of the Cuban army. On the shore, on the tugs, on the steamship, are bands, playing "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the "Hymn of Bayamo." The waterfront is black with enthusiastic crowds * * * at 6 o'clock in the morning.

"No other American," says the leading Havana paper, "would be received here with such heartfelt rejoicing."

At noon Brooke turned his office over to his successor. It was not a particularly jubilant occasion. Wood recognized the feeling of resentment against him, on the part of Brooke and his staff, understood it and curiously even in a sense sympathized with it. These men had most of them been generals when he was emerging from swaddling clothes. It took no great imagination to comprehend their emotions at being forced to yield precedence and power to an officer of a noncombatant arm. But Wood needed these men and the job in hand was more important than revenge. With a quiet assurance of his own powers of leadership which had a touch of magnificent audacity, he retained in its entirety the staff which had fed Brooke's distrust of him and had done its best to destroy him.

Another Man Kept.

There was another man he retained who had been closer to Brooke even than the members of his staff. Frank Steinhart was his chief clerk; but the title bore no relation to Steinhart's actual status. He had been more the governor than Brooke had ever been, had petted and nursed along his general, argued with him, guided him, drawn up orders and decrees; and, when Brooke entrenched himself behind his regulations, defiant of arguments, had now and again slipped a state paper that meant progress under a casual order for Brooke's unwitting assent. He was a Bavarian by birth, a portly person with a mustache that curled at the ends, an aggressive chest and a simple-hearted warmth that gave no hint of the acute encyclopedic mind. He knew everything and everybody, spoke Spanish like a native, looked as cherubic as an innkeeper and was as astute as a mandarin. He initiated Wood into the mysteries.

Gen. Wood lost no time in getting started, and the newspapers which announced his triumphant arrival announced also the arrest of ten appraisers of the custom house for fraud in collusion with some of the leading merchants of Havana. Havana buzzed; clearly a new will was in authority. All the machinery of social influence, which was the only mechanism which never lacked lubrication in Havana, began to turn its great and lesser wheels.

He began his reforms with the prisons and the courts. His first day in Havana he inspected the city jail and the provincial penitentiary.

The condition of the prisons was a public scandal throughout the island. They were crowded with hardened convicts and young innocents intermingled, assassins, brigands, sodomites, pickpockets and young men and boys charged with minor offenses or guilty of none, all herded together in an awful fellowship of squalor and misery. There were no blankets, no beds, no change of clothing. Hundreds slept on the bare stones. The filth was unspeakable.

Justice Remained Lax.

The condition of the prisons was merely the eruption on the skin denoting the disease beneath. The administration of justice had remained as lax and as corrupt under the government of Brooke's cabinet as it had been in the worst days of the Spaniards. For those with money there were ways of securing release, but the poor were without recourse.

It was all as it had been under the Spaniards, except that the judges and jailers were Cubans, tyrannizing over Cubans, and that now among the forsaken were Americans, 22 of them in the Havana jails alone, imprisoned, some of them, for five months without a hearing.

Every day brought news of men set free in Havana or in the outlying provinces, 10, 20, 40 at a time.

"The great issue now is the straightening out of the courts," Wood wrote Root, January 13, 1900.

"We have got to overcome the old and corrupt practices, to teach the courts and people that they have but two things to consider, and these are the law and the evidence in the case. It appears that these are now unimportant factors in a trial. * * *"

Gradually the details of Gen. Wood's problem unfolded themselves. He had no precedents to guide him, for all the precedents were Spanish and at variance with American ideas. Wood's sense of balance saved him from the common peril of reformers with autocratic power. "We are not running this island for ourselves," he said on one occasion. "There are lots of things here we don't like, but if they like them and they do no harm, we have no right to interfere with them."

"The main thing," he wrote to Root, "is to avoid the appearance of correcting abuses which do not exist."

At the head of the Department of Charities Wood found an Army officer, Maj. E. St. John Greble, a fiery, explosive soul, who made up in kindliness of heart what he lacked in eleemosynary experience.

How Wood Achieved Aims.

One day Wood called Maj. Greble into his room. "The insane asylum at Mazorra is in terrible shape," he said. "I want you to clean it up and organize it."

"General," said Greble, "I'm afraid I don't know much about insane asylums."

"I don't know much about being military governor," Wood answered. "Find out," he added, "how much it will cost, how long it will take, what machinery you will need, what you will have to do for discipline; and report."

Greble found the asylum a network of great pens, with men, women and children, white and black, jumbled together; a medieval inferno of horrors. By the time he was ready to make his report he found that the governor had made a study of his own in order to be in a position to judge the recommendation of his subordinate; and the work of rehabilitation began.

The only field in which Wood on his arrival had found any activity was education; but the activity was only two weeks old. A new school law issued two weeks before Brooke had retired had been framed in large part by an extraordinary person named Alexis Everett Frye, a pink-faced enthusiast of bubbling emotions, whom destiny in the remote beginnings of things had possibly intended for a curate to appall and inspire Jane Austen and had made instead, at thirty-five, an author of successful geographies, financially independent and impelled, as he explained to President Eliot, of Harvard, by an "unyielding master" within to uplift the Filipinos, or, failing an opportunity there, to teach the Cuban people how to live. On Dr. Eliot's recommendation, Root had sent him to Cuba to organize the schools, and he set to work with the fiery energy of a man on whom the Omnipotent depends. In six weeks he had organized 635 and was adding 60 or 70 more every day.

There were sharp protests against the introduction of an American system, but they died before Frye's aggressive and warm-hearted benevolence. He intended, he wrote Eliot, to raise a schoolhouse in every Cuban village. Nothing could discourage him, nothing except death make him fail.

Death was proving a gentleman, and all signs indicated that Frye would fulfill his praiseworthy intentions. The island, he reported, was on fire with enthusiasm for education. How much fire there was remained to be seen. The Cubans were by nature enthusiastic for everything which that rich uncle, the Government, provided without charge. But there could be no question that the cultivated Cubans were eager to lift the cloud of ignorance which lay upon their compatriots. There was something heroic, moreover, in the devotion with which young men and young women undertook, without equipment, without books, without desks, or even benches sometimes, to open and conduct their schools.

Previous Mistakes Avoided.

By the middle of January Gen. Wood had set a dozen fundamental reforms in operation. He took care not to repeat the mistake of the Spaniards and to leave the reorganized machinery in lazy and inefficient hands. He himself was working 18 hours out of the 24, keeping the admirable Steinhart at his desk all day and half the night, superintending the work of three shifts of stenographers, and felt in a position, therefore, to say what hours his clerks would be expected to keep. He found that these servants of the state had the habit of drifting into the office whenever it suited their convenience, toying with work an hour and drifting out again for a chat at a cafe. Wood ended all that. A wail went up which found an echo in doggerel:

"Don't stop to drink or spit,
To smoke or scratch your ear.
Go work while yet the stars are lit!
Come home while night is near.
There is no time for food.
Write till the ink runs dry.
The man who works for Wood
Is one who wants to die."

In the month of January Wood issued an order which revealed beyond misunderstanding his determination to give the civil power every opportunity to function without interference from the military. Without diminishing or delegating his own authority he indicates the fields in which the civil authorities, on the one hand, and the military on the other, should operate.

The military were to be responsible for the maintenance of public order in the general sense of the term; sanitation; the conduct of all public works of a sanitary nature; the completion of all public works then being constructed under their charge; the organization, command and administration of the Rural Guards, and the maintenance of order by them in the country districts.

The civil officials were charged with the conduct of civil affairs "under the supervision of the military governor," and were to be left to work out their own salvation so far as possible.

In giving the civil authorities wide powers independent of the military, he was careful not to fall into the pit which Brooke had digged for himself. Brooke had been right in giving the Cubans an opportunity to handle their own affairs; he had been wrong in permitting them to handle these affairs without supervision or control. In Santiago, Wood had not merely given the best of the Cubans a job; he had watched over them in the conduct of the job, guided them, prayed with them, as it were. For a time, American rule in Cuba, he had written the President, would have to be largely paternalistic. He was convinced if the Cubans were ever to learn how to govern themselves, they would, in their early efforts, have to be carefully directed. The whole problem resolved itself in his mind to a question of leadership.

"It is fortunate, indeed," wrote the Chicago Times Herald, "that he is disposed to take the civilian's view of government, and all the more fortunate because most military men in his position would be inclined to rule as soldiers."

With all this, keen observers among the Cubans noted that the governor himself was exercising not less power but more, gradually circumscribing the duties of his secretaries and concentrating power in his own hands.

The Cubans, having enjoyed authority, protested lustily at its curtailment, but commented not without admiration at the imperturbability with which Wood went on in the way which he had chosen.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood, Jan. 16.—After spending two years working in a silent picture, where voice doesn't mean anything, Virginia Cherrill lost a role in a talkie because she had a sore throat.

VIRGINIA CHERRILL

Miss Cherrill is a discovery of Charlie Chaplin, who made her his leading lady in "City Lights." Upon its completion a few weeks ago, Virginia was "loaned out" and played opposite John Wayne in "Girls Demand Excitement."

She then was cast for one of the leads in "Three Girls Lost," but just as rehearsals were finished Virginia contracted laryngitis. Loretta Young got the part instead.

Chaplin's picture, which will introduce Miss Cherrill, is scheduled to have its world premiere here almost any day. It was to have been shown publicly for the first time on New Year's day, but a new theater where it is to be exhibited was not completed.

No picture, probably, has ever been so eagerly awaited by Hollywood as "City Lights." Except for the accompanying synchronized music, it is as noiseless as any other photograph. The entire industry is wondering what effect it will have.

Ghost Won't Quit.

The horse, Ghost, like his name, is a phantom of Hollywood.

Appearing in two-score pictures, he has been cast under a half-dozen different names and has been in support, literally and figuratively, of some noted stars.

Ghost ran wild for three years, and in 1922 he was captured and trained for Ken Maynard, under the name Tarzan.

A studio, seeing in Ghost stardom and the possibility of big returns on pictures made at little cost, offered $10,000 for him. His owner refused that bid, as well as one of $12,000, made by Florez Ziegfeld, the New York producer.

When talkies came, Ghost retired because most of his trick work was done by spoken command. Now he is back at work, having learned to respond to signals.

Chattering a "Science."

The phrases "bread and butter" and "sugar and water" are used almost wholly for the creation of off-stage chatter during the recording of talkie scenes where voices of principals are heard against a faint background of conversation.

Sound technicians say these four words make the most perfect impression for audible but indistinct conversation.

MARYLAND QUINTET TRIUMPHS OVER DUKE, 32-24

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—A number of boys have started walking to Miami, convinced that sunburn is preferable to chilblains, but it seems useless to pretend that the sporting program in the land of the whispering and itching palms will be as hilarious this year as in some seasons past. All of the more pretentious heavyweight prize fighters are holding aloof, as the situation has been pretty well canvassed by box-office exports who have returned to report that any one who fights in Miami this winter will have to take 50 per cent of his compensation out in sunshine and the pleasures of the cup.

Inasmuch as the pugilists never do any business impetuously, the heavyweight champions having fought an average of about twenty minutes per year in the last ten years, it will be easy for them to restrain themselves until summer comes and a better opportunity offers.

This probably means that the customers who do go to Florida will be more likely to get more value for a dollar this winter than at any other time since the real estate boom began and the value of the dollar fell to something on the short side of a worn dime. The real estate speculators and after them the stock market speculators made it very difficult for the type of customer who was engaged in lines of trade or toil which still demanded a dollar's worth of goods or work for a dollar.

MORE VALUE FOR MONEY LIKELY

Of course, Miami is not Florida, and the cities on the Gulf Coast on the west side of the peninsula were much quicker to revise the tariff downward, but then there is no other city in Florida, nor for that matter in the United States, which offers the customers as many facilities for pleasure, including the more amiable forms of lawlessness. This city is spiritually out of tune with the northern regions of the State, a tropic community with the tropical tolerance but with characteristic American pride in its concrete lamp-posts, pavements, city hall and public park. As in New York, prohibition has never been more than a word, but, unlike New York, Miami lies within convenient shipping distance of the island liquor depots in the Atlantic, and it has always been cheaper to land self-respecting beverages on the beach and sell them unchanged than set up and operate the equipment necessary to break down their character with radiator fluid. So in Miami, the tropical moon and the genuine Heidseick generally are bracketed together, and the beat of the tropical sun along the beach or on the golf course may be assuaged with the tall gin drinks or pale, friendly beers of unimpeachable honesty, making, in all, a very pleasant state of affairs in winter.

The Miami horse track reopened today, but alarming reports are to be had of a change in the arrangements for public speculation, and great hardships confront an entire colony of earnest citizens from New York who are either on the ground or hitch-hiking in that direction. These gentlemen were given to understand that they would handle the horse wagers this year as before, but at the present writing laborers are at work erecting the old parimutuel machine at Hialeah in preparation for an experiment with a system known as the corporation plan. This is the mutuel system under another name and the change naturally means that the boys who planned to book wagers will be seized by the slack of their trousers by the house detectives and hurled over the fences if they attempt to do so. The customers much prefer the mutuel or corporation system, as this process gives them an apparent advantage in dividends, so the bookmakers would not receive any business even if they were allowed to try. Some of the boys may obtain employment in the mutuel plant, but the majority of them will be without means of support a long way from home after being lured away.

BOOKIES GET NO CHANCE TO WORK

The larceny is not very restrained when the bookmakers conduct the betting, as they make their own odds and maintain the finest cooperation. But in an unsupervised mutuel system such as the one now proposed for the Miami track the temptation to take advantage of the patrons seems much too strong for the stoutest honors. I have heard many depressing stories of deceitfulness in the unsupervised mutuels, including instances of retroactive wagering by the promoters. In this maneuver, the persons in charge, being accountable only to their own consciences, which sometimes are extremely tolerant, have been known to drop in large wagers on the winner after the race, thus diminishing the odds payable to bona fide customers on wagers placed beforehand. It is not considered sporting to enter wagers after a race has been run.

The season at the St. Johns track

Golden Holds Stroke Lead In Mexico

Dudley Is 2d at Half-Way Mark in Agua Caliente Open.

Smith and Dutra Tie for Third; Armour Is Eliminated.

By BRIAN BELL.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—John Golden continued to set the pace in the $25,000 Agua Caliente open golf tournament today by adding a score of 73 to his 70 of yesterday for a two-day total of 143.

He was a stroke in front of Ed Dudley at the halfway mark, the Wilmington, Del., pro equalling the Connecticut man's 73 today for a 36 hole count of 144.

Tied for third place with score of 146 were Macdonald Smith and Mortie Dutra, the Carnoustie star shooting a 74 today and Spanish sharpshooter 75. Each might have been lower. The Scot missed two puny putts and the Long Beach pro suffered a disastrous break at the second hole where his ball moved as he dislodged a twig, making it necessary for the player to note a penalty stroke on his card.

Five Players Grouped At 147 Strokes.

The close of the second day's play found three well-known players and two of lesser reputation grouped at 147, in fine position to leap into the forefront of the battle if the leaders falter in the later rounds.

Gene Sarazen and Horton Smith each shot 75 today and George Von Elm, the business man, came in with a fine 73. Ralph Guldahl, Dallas, Tex., and Williard Hutchison, young Chicago pro, made it a quintet in the tie for fifth, Hutchison getting a score of 73 today and Guldahl 74.

The low score of the second round was a par 72, in which Chet Beer, Bakersfield, Calif., stood alone, the only man to get an even break with the card. With 76 yesterday, this gave the Californian a score of 148, the position occupied by Leo Diegel, who slumped from 72 yesterday to 76 today.

Perfect weather greeted the players, a warm sun flooding the course over which practically no wind blew, but the scoring was not so good as yesterday in the rain.

Byerly and Dawson Lead Amateurs.

L. A. Byerly, Portland, Oreg., and John Dawson, Chicago, tied for the lead of the amateur division, with scores of 154 for the first half of the competition.

The final 36 holes, divided between tomorrow and Saturday, will be fought out by 52 pros and ten amateurs.

No pro requiring more than 157 strokes in the first 36 holes will be permitted to travel the long, long trail with thousands of dollars at the end.

The elimination cast out several well-konwn stars. Tommy Armour and Tony Manero, among others, were removed from the competition.

For the second time in two days, Golden made a brave finish to make his lead secure. Yesterday he slammed a brassie second 6 feet from the pin at the home hole. Today his second left him 10 feet from the cup but he again holed the putt for a birdie 3. He also sent a long putt down for a birdie 4 at 554-yard seventeenth, after getting home with two tremendous woods.

Eastern 35-34 Victim of Gonzaga

Fitzgerald's Shot Wins Thriller in Second Extra Period.

Guyon's Regular Five Unable to Hold Lead of Subs.

GONZAGA HIGH SCHOOL'S basket ball team threw caution and the predictions of the experts to the winds yesterday and defeated Eastern, leaders of the high school series, by the score 35-34 after two drama-laden extra periods. The game was played at Eastern.

Dicky Fitzgerald, one of the smallest high school varsity basket ball players in Washington, emerged from the victory as the outstanding individual performer, pocketed 7 baskets and a foul shot for his team, the seventh basket soaring from the precise center of Eastern's floor to change the score from 34-33 in favor of Eastern to the count which held true to the end of the game—then less than a minute away.

Eastern Rally Ties Score.

Eastern went down to its first defeat at the hands of a Gonzaga aggregation in eight years on an Eastern court. Gonzaga leading by a margin of 24-18 with the end of the regular game plainly in sight. But here Eastern stiffened and evened the score with a great exhibition of potting on the part of Zola and Lieb.

Eastern looked like the winner in the middle of the first extra period, but reckoned without the illiputian Fitzgerald, who sank two baskets which aided his team to tie the Lincoln Parkers at 30-30 at the period ended.

Noonan and Lieb dropped in baskets from great distances to carry Eastern to 34-31 late in the second and final extra period, but Jack Hester came through with a great short shot and then Fitzgerald did the "Merriwell" act.

Gonzaga Uses Five Men.

Gonzaga played with but five men, while Eastern used its second stringers for the full first half, and its regulars for the remainder of the game. The score stood 14-12 at the half in favor of Eastern.

Notable was the guarding of Big Bill Noonan, ace of the high school series scorers; by Jack Hester, who also had time to gain his team 10 points.

Eastern showed signs of underestimating the Gonzagans, who had crashed into the win column for the first time the day before.

CATHOLIC U. SURPRISES DUQUESNE

Cards Score Upset, 29-24; Spinnelli in Star Role.

CATHOLIC UNIVERCITY'S Five proved lats night that it did not insert all of its basket ball into last Tuesday's gallant upset of George Washington. With that victory its only asset of the present season, the Cardinal quintet tackled an undefeated Duquesne University team and fought its way to a 29-to-24 triumph.

The visitors, who had waltzed to a victory over American U. Wednesday night, apparently were unprepared for the reception that was accorded them. The Cardinals were on their toes with the opening tos-up, and instead of the usual "feeling out" process which marks the early minutes of most games, the real action began at the start.

Duquesne Loses Star Catcher.

This fact worked to the disadvantage of Duquesne, which lost McGeever, its star center, midway of the first half on personal fouls. Spinelli, Catholic U. center, was playing the visiting star to a standstill at the time, and he went on to lead his team to the victory. Sheary, although he made only one field goal, shared the honors with Spinelli.

After the lead had seesawed for the most part, Catholic U. was ahead 13 to 12 at the half. Duquesne, however, soon regained the lead and, with ten minutes to play, had a 18-to-17 advantage. From this point the Cardinals went to the front again, never to be headed.

G. U. QUINTET FACES TEST TONIGHT

Scalzi to Return for Duquesne Game as Team Resumes.

THIRTEEN local college teams sweep into action tonight, either here or away, in ten games—the most active single day of the still young collegiate basket ball year. Five of the games will be on view for the delectation of local audiences.

Featuring the local games tonight will be the return to Tech at 8:30 of Georgetown's University basket ball squad, which meets Duquesne after a lengthy series on out-of-town courts in which it dropped decisions to the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus, Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn, Manhattan and St. John's of Brooklyn. Johns Hopkins was met and conquered Tuesday night at Baltimore, Emile Bozek and Bill Morris shining. It was the Hilltoppers' first win since December 13, when Baltimore U. was conquered at Tech.

Good fortune was visited upon the Georgetown camp yesterday by the news that John Scalzi had been discharged from the university hospital, where he had been confined with a heavy cold. It is probable that the sterling quarter back and basket ball guard will be back in the lineup tonight.

The Hilltoppers have their work cut out for them in Duquesne tonight. The Dukes come to Tech High on the tail of a trek which has seen them down Lehigh, Waynesboro, St. Mary's, of Michigan; Thiel and American. The "Dukes" struck a snag against Catholic U. last night, however. It is a hardy band of Pennsylvanians, this Duquesne crew, and Georgetown will have displayed real basket ball skill if Duquesne is sent home on the briefer end of a score.

The Hilltop Yearlings play Devitt in the preliminary, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

15-Year-Old Golfer Wins at Coral Gables

Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Young Winifield Day, jr., newest of golfing stars, swept by the first obstacle in his quest for honors in the annual Miami Biltmore winter invitational tournament today by defeating Ed Joyce, his fellow townsman, by a score of 6 and 5.

The 15-year-old Chicago school boy jumped to hte fore of amateur ahotsters in Florida when he won the Miami midwinter title from Lee Chase, Buffalo, in a 40-hole duel last Sunday.

Day was on top of his game all the way in the first round of match play today, turning in a medal score of 74 for the difficult 6,538-yard course. Par is 71.

Interhigh Swimming Meet Planned Here

Plans are afoot which may lead to the establishment of the first interhigh swimming meet on record here, to be held March 30 and 31.

The idea is Fred Brunner's, coach of Central High's swimming teams for the past decade and a half. If plans go through, it is probable that nearby high and prep schools will be invited to enter the competition.

Although plans as to the place of the meet are still in the laboratory stage, the assistance of J. C. Cochran, veteran swimming instructor at the Shoreham Hotel, has already been sought with a view to having the event run off at the hotel's Venetian pool.

Bridgewater Rally Beats Roanoke Five

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 15.—Staging a great comeback in the last half after being completely outplayed the first period, the Bridgewater College Eagles tonight defeated the Roanoke College Maroons, 29 to 23. This was Bridgewater's second Virginia Conference victory in as many starts.

Roanoke led at half time, 17 to 9, the Maroons bottling up the Eagle offense. Bridgewater got going in the second half as J. Flory and Will rang up basket after basket. The score was tied at 21 all with five minutes to play when Flory and Will broke loose again to make victory safe. Purvine and Goode were the outstanding performers for Roanoke.

Berger Stars In Old Line Victory

Visitors Ahead Only at Start; Scoree 16-9 at Half.

"Ball-Hawk" Play of Maryland Factor; Croson Stars.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S Basket Ball Team, starting from the dead scratch of a make-shift combination in early season, and gradually refined since then, reached a potent crest of smoothness and efficiency last night before a jammed gym full of rabid fans at College Park when it sent Duke spinning down to a 32-24 defeat.

Maryland's men showed an inspired brand of team play to crush the spasmodically brilliant Duke team, never losing confidence that theirs was the winning style of play, and never seeming to hurry themselves into any degree of raggedness. Then, too, Bozey Berger truly outdid himself to the extent of pocketing 16 points, to stand above his evenly shooting colleagues.

Maryland Outplayed Only Near Basket.

The ball hawking of Maryland was a deciding factor in the battle. Only around the vicinity of the basket, when the python-like arms of Joe Croson shot yards into the air to snare a droppink ball, was Maryland outbested in the quest of the old hoghide. But usually not for long, with Ronkin and Norris and Berger perpetually breaking in on Duke's passing game.

Duke's play was sketchy, sometimes resembling a team which knew no superior, and other times resembling a team with very much of a superior in the ball-mongering Maryland crew. Joe Croson, former Tech player, was most of Duke's team, and a smoothly confident player he was over the gangling youth he once had trouble making Tech's team.

Duke threatened twice, other times maintaining a discreet distance behind the better organized Marylanders. The first threat came early in the game, when after Maryland had lead 7-0, mostly because of two memorable pot shots by Berger, Duke climbed up 8 saright points to assume a slight lead.

Old Liners' Machine-Like Progress Effective.

But Maryland's machine-like progress, the physical manifestations of which were a crisply conceived passing march down the floor, soon told.

The second and final challenge by Duke came in the dying moments of the game when Croson and Capelli almost singlehanded brought the score from 23-14 to 24-21 before Berger and Co. put an end to all this with suddenly inspired play.

Twin Court Bill Opens D. C. Loop Tomorrow

Joe Judge, Washington first sacker, will throw up the first ball in the Boys' Club-St. Martin's contest tomorrow night at the Boys' Club, which will inaugurate activities in the newly organized District of Columbia Basket Ball League. The battle will start at 7:30 o'clock.

Immediately following this contest Saks Clothiers and Mercurys will tangle in another league game. Between games Billy and Margaret Gretorex will put on a specialty dance.

Managers of the eight teams in the circuit are expected to submit their eligibility lists and franchise fees to Joseph F. Robinson, secretary of the league, at the Boys' Club by 6 p. m. tomorrow.

Anderson Retained As Aid to Rockne

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Hartley "Hunk" Anderson, former Notre Dame University football line star and coach of the forward wall of the 1930 championship team, will return to Notre Dame next year as Coach Knute Rockne's first assistant, it was announced tonight at the annual Monogram Club banquet.

The football men elected Tom Yarr, first string center of the 1930 team, captain for 1931. Yarr's home is in Dabob, Wash.

Anderson signed a one-year contract, Rockne said. Jack Chevigny, 1930 back field coach, did not appear to sign his proffered contract, however. There have been rumors Chevigny might assist "Navy Bill" Ingram, who recently accepted the head coach position at the University of California.

Thirty-three letters were awarded at the banquet to members of the 1930 team.

LACOSTE DUE TO RETURN TO TENNIS

French Star, Health Improved, Waits for Spring.

PARIS, Jan. 15 (A. P.)—Jean Rene Lacoste, 25 years old, builder of motor cars, possessor of what has been described as the world's most nearly perfect tennis technique, is coming back to the tennis wars this year.

Hindered by bronchitis in the 1926 campaign and forced from competition entirely in 1929 by ill health, the slim young Frenchman believes he is recovered sufficiently in body to take out his tennis racket again and match strokes with the great of the courts.

He said today he was waiting only the first good weather of spring to start his comeback campaign and he hoped to be in shape to play at Wimbledon and in defense of the Davis Cup this year.

It was largely due to the wizardry of Lacoste's strokes that the famous international trophy was wrested from the United States in 1927 and taken to France where the prospect is it will remain for several years more if the leader of the "Three Musketeers" can regain his old form.

In successive matches at Germantown, Pa., in the fall of 1927, he defeated the two invincibles of American tennis—"Big Bill" Tilden and "Little Bill" Johnson—and assured to France possession of the Davis Cup.

Mack and Shibe Leave For Florida Golf Links

Philadelphia, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Although it was the second coldest morning of the winter in Philadelphia with good ice skating all around, there was a sign that spring is just ahead.

It was Connie Mack and Tom Shibe starting the trek to the southland to prepare for the spring training practice of the world champion Philadelphia Athletics.

Mack, 68-year-old manager, and Shibe, president of the club, left with their wives for Mount Plymouth, Fla., where they will play golf until the members of the team begin to arrive at Fort Myers, next month.

Winner of eight pennants and five world championships, Mack said he would not predict another championship, but expressed the belief that he would have a winning team.

ROBINS WANT WHEAT.

New York, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Zachary Davis Wheat, once the idol of Flatbush, may come back to the Brooklyn Robins this season to help cure their fault of allpahed base running. Frank York, Robin president, is negotiating with Wheat, who has retired.

Dempsey Bid $100,000 For Bout With Sharkey

Boston, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—A $100,000 offer to meet Jack Sharkey here in a ball park next summer was sent today to Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, by Matchmaker Bob McKirdy, of the Arena A. A. The latter said that Sharkey has agreed to terms for such a bout.

Other efforts to get Dempsey and Sharkey together in the same ring were made today by Eddie Mack, another Boston boxing promoter. He has opened negotiations to have Dempsey come here on January 26 to announce at Ernie Schaaf-Dick Daniels bout. Schaaf is under the joint management of Sharkey and Johnny Buckley.

Helen Hicks Practices For Winter Tourneys

St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 15.—(A. P.)—Helen Hicks, one of America's premier women golfers, arrived here today to get into practice for the winter tournaments.

Miss Hicks said she wished to overcome expected difficulties with the new golf ball before meeting the British invasion led by Diana Fishwick.

Miss Fishwick and eight other English golfers will come to this country to participate in the tournaments at Palm Beach, Ormond and St. Augustine this winter.

G. W. FROSH WIN FROM EMERSON

Fouts Leads Attack as Yearlings Win by 30-18 Score.

EXHIBITING a smooth passing attack which functioned at top speed practically the entire game, George Washington University Freshmen cagers decisively trounced Emerson Institute, 30 to 18, on the George Washington floor yesterday afternoon before 250 persons.

The score does not tell the real story of the contest, as the Colonial frosh held their opponents to 2 points the first half, both made on foul shots by Heflin, while the yearlings amassed 12 points. The Prepmen flashed their best basket ball in the second half against a G. W. team made up largely of substitutes.

Heflin, Emerson guard, was the outstanding player on the floor, sinking three field goals and the same number of fouls to lead both teams in scoring. Fouts, with three double-deckers and one foul shot, led the Freshmen.

Baer Heavy Choice to Beat Heeney at Garden Tonight

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—A squad of the younger heavyweights, with just one veteran to add age and dignity to the picture, takes over Madison Square Garden tomorrow night to displace with fistic action the verbal duels that have overwhelmed the division for the past ten days.

Max Baer, big, good-looking puncher from California, will make his second start in the East against Tom Heeney, the New Zealand war horse who is slowly reaching the end of the trail. Baer lost his first engagement here to Ernie Schaaf, the Boston blond, but was impressive and colorful enough in action to merit another hearing. Odds are overwhelmingly in favor of the youngster.

Jack Dempsey, now active as a referee, probably will enliven the main ten-round bout with his presence.

Two Capital Fighters On Program at Garden

Boxing history for Washington will be made tonight when two of the Capital's sparse fight colony participate in bouts at Madison Square Garden in preliminaries to the Heeney-Baer bout.

Marty Gallagher, erstwhile "Pride of Foggy Bottom," will fight in the semifinal against Paul Swiderski who once floored Mickey Walker for the count of nine in the first round only to lose the decision. The other Washingtonian is "Baker Boy" Billy Schwartz, late of Alexandria but now fighting in the Frankie Mann stable, who will meet Arthur Huttich in an eight-rounder.

GRIFFITH SEES ONE SUPER HURLER AS NATS' NEED

Hadley Is Due For Special Attention

Seen as Best Bet for Development Into Big Winner.

Nats' Owner Asserts One Hurler Must Win 25 Games.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WHILE Clark Griffith, Washington Club president, is not doing much actual physical labor in his offices these days, he's doing a whole lot of thinking with respect to the Nationals' outlook in the coming race. "What we need and what any pennant-winning combination needs," he said, "is an outstanding pitcher—one who will win 25 or so games for you—and I figure we've simply got to develop one if we are to win out in the coming race."

"Just suppose we could have developed a Bob Grove or a Wes Ferrell," he remarked last night. "Why, we'd have just breezed home in the last race. And Manager Johnson and I certainly are going to do all in our power to develop a pitching star for 1931, if it is possible for us to do so."

Griffith was not prepared to state which of his pitchers he planned working on, but he intimated that he considered Irving Hadley his best bet, with Lloyd Brown and Ad Liska as possibilities.

Special Attention Given Hadley.

"I did everything in my power to make Hadley outstanding last season," said Griffith. "Not only was Irving given special attention at the training camp and throughout the season but I gave him a contract by which he could have gotten rich had he delivered. He earned one bonus by turning in fifteen victories, and our agreement called for $500 for each game he won over this total. He failed to collect on this."

From a conversation with the Nat leader on the subject of Hadley, one infers that Johnson believes many failures were due to the judgment he used on the mound rather than because of any lack of throwing ability. "A pitcher often loses a game because of only one poorly pitched ball at a critical time," said Sir Walter, "and I know that Hadley failed to use his head on a number of occasions last season."

Brown Brilliant At Times.

Consistent work is looked for from "Gen." Al Crowder, Fred Marberry and Sad Sam Jones, but Griffith's second best bet as a possible star is Brown. This young southpaw, after two mediocre seasons here, won sixteen games in the last race and was brilliant at times. He, too, will come in for special attention this season, while the Nat owner also mentions Bob Burke and Ad Liska as possibilities for development into top-notchers almost overnight.

ANGRY, 80-1, IN HIALEAH VICTORY

Peto Second in Opening Feature Test at Miami.

HIALEAH, Fla., Jan. 15 (N.Y.-W.N.S.).—It was Whitney day at the opening of the Miami meeting at Hialeah Park this afternoon. Angry, a 4-year-old bay gelding by John P. Grier, carried the light blue silks of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney to victory in the Hialeah Inaugural Handicap, at six furlongs, and paid $162.70 straight in the $2 certificates—a trifle over 80 to 1.

Angry won by three parts of a length from William Woodward's Peto, while A. W. Wentzel's Pennant Lass, which had made most of the running, was third, a length behind. The time was 1:13.

Thirteen of the eighteen overnight entries went to the post for the race, which was worth $2,650 to the winner and it was a horse race all the way. Pennant Lass, always a quick beginner, jumped off in front at the rise of the barrier with Jack Howe forcing the pace and Kurtsinger rating Angry along in third place. Son O'Battle also joined the first flight, while Dedicate, the favorite, never was prominent.

Peto Carried Wide At Turn.

Rounding the turn into the stretch, Peto moved up fast on the outside, but was carried wide, but for which he probably would have won. As the Whitney and Belair silks led the driving field through the stretch, it recalled the turf rivalry of last season. But this time, fortune was with the Whitney silks.

There was plenty of applause for the brave effort of Angry, but few held certificates on his chances that could be turned into coin of the realm.

Charley Kurtsinger, who had the mount on Angry, rode a clever, well-judged race, and put up his usual strong finish. Incidentally, he scored a double, having ridden Lightning Bolt in the opening event on the card.

The gathering in the clubhouse was a large and fashionable one. A special train brought a big contingent over from Palm Beach in addition to the many who motored over. Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney came down from Delray, where Mr. Whitney has been playing polo. The certificate system of betting seemed to be popular with the crowd and worked smoothly.

Rex Enright Resigns As N. C. Frosh Coach

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—The athletic council of the University of North Carolina today accepted the resignation of Rex Enright, freshman football coach, who will go to the University of Georgia as chief assistant to Head Coach Harry Mehre.

Enright succeeds Frank Thomas, who becomes head coach at Alabama, filling the vacancy created by the departure of Wallace Wade, who becomes head coach at Duke University tomorrow.

Although Enright's contract does not expire until September 1, he will report almost immediately at Athens for winter football drills.

British Here to Form Athletic Club Tonight

The British Athletic and Soccer Club will be organized tonight at the Playhouse, 1614 N street northwest, at 8:30 o'clock when a meeting of many local athletes of British descent is held.

The program tonight calls for the formation of the club and the election of officers.

Plans are afoot to spread the interests of the impending club to tennis and golf.

Winter Race Meets Attract Shenandoah Valley Horses

Virginia Establishments Well Represented; Sun Beau at Agua Caliente for Money-Winning Record; Big Cuban Shipment.

Special to The Washington Post.

WINCHESTER, Va., Jan. 15.—Famous horse-breeding establishments of the Shenandoah Valley will be well represented at the winter meetings of the Far South and West Coast, according to W. J. Carter, an authority on horse breeding and racing in Virginia. The Court Manor stud of Willis Sharpe Kilmer already is in readiness at New Orleans, and a portion of the big and powerful Audley Farm Stable of Bernard B. Jones has been shipped to Agua Caliente.

It long has been Kilmer's most coveted ambition to breed a race horse to approach even the exploits of Exterminator, and now, according to Carter, it seems that fruition may obtain in Sun Beau. If that sturdy son of Sun Briar should score in the $100,000 Agua Caliente Handicap, the enrollment would signalize immortality in turf annals.

Exterminator Cost Kilmer But $7,500.

In fact, Kilmer has declared that he would grow stark mad from joy if he should ever breed a performer like his famous unsexed son of McGee.

Kilmer was also quoted as saying that he paid $7,500, instead of the variously reported prices of $10,000

SENATOR SHELBY M. CULLOM, OF ILLINOIS, CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN RELATIONS, LEFT WASHINGTON YESTERDAY FOR FLORIDA, WHERE HE HOPES TO REGAIN HIS HEALTH.

JANUARY 16, 1906.

President Roosevelt said yesterday that he expects to visit Central Africa as soon after the expiration of his present term as possible. He will hunt lions, tigers and elephants.

The North Capitol and Eckington Citizens Association celebrated its tenth anniversary with a banquet last night at the Riggs Hotel.

Two Washington printing firms were expelled from the United Typothetae for signing eight-hour working agreements with their employes.

Lieut. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, chief of staff of the Army, resigned yesterday because of his approaching retirement. Maj. Gen. John C. Bates, assistant chief of staff, was immediately designated to fill the vacancy.

HEALTH IN COLLEGE.

IN place of the present schedule of subjects taught in colleges, Goodwin Watson proposes that colleges set up functional departments grouping the interests "that spring from the demands of actual life."

The first and most important of these departments, he says, should be the department of health. Each student should take some problem of health and work out a solution. In doing this, he would teach himself a fund of valuable information and many health principles, meanwhile acquiring health habits and learning how to live. Health includes both physical and mental health. The projects include public health as well as those of personal hygiene. Among subjects to be studied scientifically and fundamentally, and also in their everyday, practical relations, he suggests the following:

The control of temper, how to get over the blues, finding out why one is shy, how to get over self-consciousness, the likes and dislikes of people, the bringing up of weight and weight reduction. Among the public health projects suggested are: Ice cream supply, drinking water, swimming facilities, smoke nuisance, contagious diseases, prejudices and the social neuroses of the community, the insane and delinquent. The proposal is that hundreds of subjects of these types be outlined in a series of how-to-live-with bulletins, each one of which outlines one problem and lays down ways to begin its solution. From that point the student goes on his own.

Dr. Watson had other fish to fry and he could not go into much detail. Doubtless on his list of several hundred projects from which the student could choose would be the care of the feet, of the skin, of the hair, how much muscle exercise is required for health, whether setting up exercises are worth while, what value has hardening oneself, how can one become a good heat maker, how can worry be prevented, good sleeping habits, how can judgment be protected against emotional thinking, why is mob psychology an emotional hodgepodge, can it be made a mental process, what is the appeal of quackery, how far should good citizens go in building up health departments, how can the opinions and judgments of men as to medicine and medical men be put on a more wholesome basis?

ENLARGED HEART.

W. A. F. writes:

1. What causes enlargement of the heart?
2. Is it curable?
3. Is it possible for water to form around the heart?

REPLY.

1. Organic heart disease, hard labor, too much athletics are among the causes.
2. Everything depends on the cause.
3. Yes. That is known as pericarditis.

CANKER SORES.

Mrs. J. D. writes: Can you tell me of some method to heal canker sores in the mouth? I have them real often and they get to be awfully large. Different people have advised turpentine, iodine, powdered alum, and camphor. I have tried them all, but nothing seems to help. They last from one to two months.

REPLY.

To cure a canker, touch once or twice with a caustic, such as dilute sulphuric acid, nitrate of silver or lunar caustic. In most cases one application suffices. To prevent, change the diet, eating habits, or bowel habits as may be indicated.

STOCK PRICE INDEX SLUMPS 2.9 POINTS

Largest Recession So Far in 1931 Occurs During Fairly Active Session.

BROKERS' LOANS DECLINE

New York, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—The stock market today overstepped the boundaries of the narrow trading area in which it had been aimlessly maneuvering and dropped to the lowest level since December 31.

Declines were largest in the prominent shares, so that the index for 90 issues was pulled down 2.9 points, the largest recession so far in 1931.

Heaviness characterized the day's trading from the start. A few rails made headway in the morning but this demonstration met no response and the market thereafter drooped steadily. Activity increased toward the close when some fair-sized blocks were sold. Final prices were generally the poorest. Sales of 1,932,990 shares were more than 600,000 above yesterday's turnover.

Professional bears, finding the support so mediocre, supplied much of the selling which at times was directed against relatively few stocks, although it became more inclusive in the afternoon.

Eastman Kodak Off 6.

Eastman Kodak, down more than 6 points; American & Foreign Power, off 4 in response to reports that earnings last year were about a dollar a share; American Telephone, also 4 points lower; Allied Chemical, breaking 8; and Westinghouse more than 2 to another new low were among the favorite targets.

United States Steel lost 2¾. The final sale in that seasoned market leader was 4,500 shares at 139, the lowest quotation of the year. American Can yielded 3, General Electric 2, National Biscuit 2½, Anaconda Copper, Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Bethlehem and Union Carbide a point. Missouri-Kansas-Texas stood out with a 3-point rally, based on reports that the dividend had been earned and would be paid.

The Richfield Oil receivership was probably the most prominent item in the day's corporate news and the stock, which had been soft for some time, added nearly 2 points to its recent losses. Bonds responded well to the relaxation of pressure from new financing.

Abundant Supply of Money.

Six months time money was shaded by some dealers and the supply of funds offered in the demand loan market continued embarrassingly abundant as cash persisted in flowing here from the interior.

The absences of sustained speculative interest in the long side, which has considerably emboldened the bears since the first flush of the new year rally vanished, was reflected in the $59,000,000 decline in brokers' loans to the new low record total of $1,820,000,000. This is $1,545,000,000 under the borrowings outstanding a year ago.

The weekly statement of the Bank of England revealed another loss of gold, while holdings of the Bank of France increased. Acceptance by the latter of standard gold bars from London, and French purchases of sterling bills firmed slightly in Paris, although the demand rate on London here eased. The franc again sagged.

Corn was weak, losing more than 2 cents a bushel, apparently because of favorable weather and lower Nebraska offerings. Wheat eased ¼ to 1½ cents, with the largest loss in the March future. Winnipeg was also easy.

Bank Acceptances Drop $15,451,473

$1,555,966,201 Total on December 31 Reported by Council.

New York, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Bankers' acceptances declined $15,451,473 in December to a total of $1,555,966,201 as of December 31, the American Acceptance Council reported today. The total at the end of the year also was $176,470,187 below the record total of $1,732,436,388 established December 31, 1929.

Robert H. Bean, executive secretary of the council, said that the "small reduction reported lacks special significance, except as indicating that the peak of the season's acceptance financing has been passed and that a normal decline in bill volume may be looked for during the next four or five months."

Although the final reports for 1929 and 1930 showed a difference of a little more than 10 per cent in favor of the previous year, the monthly report points out that throughout the year 1930 the average volume was substantially higher than during 1929. During December the volume of acceptances financing goods shipped between or stored in foreign countries again increased to an all-time high of $561,442,562, a gain of $17,691,814 for the month.

RISING MOVEMENT RESUMED BY BONDS

Atlantic Coast Line 4½s Climb 2¾; C. & O. Advance 1.

U. S. GOVERNMENTS GAIN

New York, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—The bond market had a respite today from the competition of new financing and resumed its advance.

United States Governments pointed toward new high levels and domestic corporate obligations in the investment class tended higher under the leadership of high grade carrier liens.

The lull in capital emissions was considered a good thing, as there was some doubt as to whether the listed market could stand the strain. With no further offerings today to swell the three-day total of $130,000,000 bidding for investment issues improved and the market's general tone was much steadier.

Flotation Is Disposed of.

Indications that the improved sentiment toward the bond market has extended to municipal issues were given in the announcement that a syndicate had disposed of the last of the $50,000,000 New York City 4s offered last October. At the end of the year it was reported the syndicate still had $18,000,000 on their shelves. The State of Arkansas has sold $15,000,000 4½ per cent notes, due July 15, 1931, which are being offered by a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co.

The accumulation of high grade investment issues was at a good pace today, and the turnover expanded to around the recent normal. Atlantic Coast Line 4½s advanced 2¾, and there were advances of a point in Boston & Maine 5s, Chesapeake & Ohio general 4½s, Chicago Union Station first 5s, Illinois Central 4s, Long Island 4s, M. K. T. adjustment 5s, New York Central 4s, Pennsylvania 5s, Pere Marquette 4½s, Southern Pacific 4s, Union Pacific 4s. Hocking Valley 4½s touched a new year's high at 106⅛. Some of the utilities moved upward sharply, but the group was irregular.

Treasury 3½s Advance.

The influence of easy money on United States Governments has been marked since the first of the year. Treasury 3½s of 1940-1943 touched a new high for the past two years today and others are selling close to the 1930 maximum.

The passing of the Richfield Oil of California into the hands of a receiver brought a sharp reaction in the convertible 6s. The bond dipped 13½ points to 41 and closed at 43. Other oil bonds were unsettled. Stock privilege issues were generally lower. In the foreign section the principal movement was in South Americans. Argentine issues softened. Colombian and Bolivian governments improved.

Offerings tomorrow will include $10,000,000 Standard Gas & Electric Co. 6 per cent convertible notes, and $15,000,000 State of Arkansas 4¾ per cent highway notes.

RICHFIELD OIL CO. IS IN RECEIVERSHIP

Company Had Sensational Rise From Small Firm to Big Organization.

$3,500,000 BOND IS SET

Los Angeles, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—The sensational rise of the Richfield Oil Co., of California, from a small organization to one of the largest gasoline and oil distributors on the Pacific Coast in a period of five years, ended in a receivership in equity today.

The receivership climaxed rumors of the past week which sent Richfield common, on the Los Angeles and San Francisco Stock Exchanges, below $3 a share. It sold as high as $25 last year.

The petition for the receivership was filed by the Republic Supply Co., of California, in the court of Federal Judge William P. James. It was granted almost immediately, and William C. McDuffie, who took over the presidency of Richfield three weeks ago, qualified as receiver with a bond of $3,500,000, the largest ever set in Federal court here.

The petitioner alleged Richfield, with assets of $120,000,000 and liabilities of $35,000,000, had insufficient cash on hand to meet its obligations and owed more than $19,000,000. The receivership will permit the company to continue as a going concern, whereas a receivership in bankruptcy would have necessitated liquidation.

Among obligations are first mortgage bonds in excess of $24,000,000, and bonds of a subsidiary totaling more than $9,000,000. There are 2,126,187 shares of common stock and 399,000 shares of preferred stock outstanding.

Dan Mill Officials Say 3,100 at Work

Pay Roll Now Held to Be in Excess of That Before Strike.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Jan. 15.—Authorities of the Dan River Mills were quoted today as saying that 3,100 operatives worked in the plants yesterday and that the total pay roll is now $60,000 a week, or considerably in excess of what is was before the strike began in September.

Union spokesmen held that the number in the mills is not over 2,000, and that there have been but 150 desertions from the local union membership, claimed to total 3,000.

According to union officials, most of the men now employed are unskilled, including a large number of farmers and other persons out of employment.

Nitrate Project In Chile Pushed

Negotiations on $375,000,000 Loan Progressing, Is Statement.

New York, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Pablo Ramirez, chairman of the special Chilean commission now in New York, said in a statement today that negotiations looking to the creation of the $375,000,000 Chilean nitrate combine were "proceeding satisfactorily."

He denied a report from Santiago that a $325,000,000 loan had been arranged with New York bankers, saying the figure was "fantastic." He said the amount of the eventual loan had not yet been discussed.

His statement was the first information from an official source that a loan will be one feature of the financing now being discussed by the commission with representatives of the Guggenheims, who through the Anglo-Chilean Consolidated Nitrate Corporation, own a preponderating interest in nitrate properties in the South American country.

ITALIAN SEA FLIERS REACH RIO JANEIRO

Gen. Balbo Leads Squadron of Eleven Ships in Flight From Bahia Bay.

THRONGS GREET AIRMEN

Rio de Janeiro, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—Eleven swift Italian seaplanes today completed the flight of more than 6,000 miles which fourteen began December 17 at Orebetello, Italy.

Gen. Italo Balbo, the 34-year-old Italian air minister, took the eleven ships off the water at Bahia at 8:17 o'clock this morning (6:17 a. m., Eastern standard time) and set them down upon beautiful Botafogo Bay between 4:54 and 5 o'clock this afternoon (2:54 and 3 p. m., Eastern standard time), completing the last lap of 747 miles.

The ships arrived over the Brazilian capital at 3:40 p. m., local time, but circled widely for more than an hour before skimming down to the bay. From early morning, when notice of the take-off was bulletined, crowds gathered in front of newspaper offices to watch the progress of the journey, while sirens announced the passage of all important coastal points.

Several hours before the scheduled arrival great throngs poured along the riverside boulevard to await the first sight of the Italian craft and to watch the reception of the transatlantic aviators.

High Brazilian officials stood on the pier of the Fluminense Yacht Club while a launch bearing the Italian Ambassador and a representative of President Getulio Vargas went out to take Gen. Balbo from his plane.

After a brief ceremony the aviators were taken in motor cars to the Gloria Hotel, where they will be the guests of the city while here.

FORMER AUSTRIAN OFFICER CONVICTED

Charges of Grand and Petit Larceny Were Brought Against Giannoni.

ALLEGEDLY STOLE RADIO

Frank Giannoni, ship captain and former lieutenant in the Austrian Navy, was convicted yesterday in District Supreme Court on charges of grand larceny and petit larceny.

Giannoni was indicted on two charges of grand larceny growing out of alleged thefts of electrical equipment and a radio from two boats in the Washington Channel. The Austrian's boat, the converted subchaser Anna, is parked nearby.

The man first came into the limelight several months ago when he filed suit against the Government, seeking to recover $30,000 for loss of his registry papers and damage to his boat. His boat was seized by Coast Guards more than a year ago when, as he says, he put into a North Carolina harbor to escape a storm, and failed to declare at the customs. After that the boat was towed to Fort Washington, and en route ran aground, damaging the bottom. Later it was brought to Washington and since then has been tied up, while the skipper sought Governmental relief.

Giannoni was convicted on the grand larceny charge in connection with the alleged theft of a radio from a boat belonging to William P. Ames, of Clarendon, Va. The lesser conviction grew out of the alleged theft of equipment from the boat of Robert G. Malston.

The defendant was represented by Attorney Albert W. Fox, while the Government was represented by Assistant United States Attorneys James R. Kirkland and John J. Sirica.

Complaint Against Former Representative Updike Mentioned Cruelty.

Mrs. Charlotte M. Updike's suit for limited divorce against her husband, Ralph E. Updike, former representative from Indiana and a boxing enthusiast, was dismissed yesterday on her request, in District Supreme Court.

Attorneys for Mrs. Updike, Raymond Neudecker and Jean Boardman, refused to comment on the action.

Mrs. Sully is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Annie K. Campbell, of the Calvert street address; a son, Charles J. Sully, of Los Angeles; two grandsons and six great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Sully was born in Canada. She lived at New York several years before coming to Washington eleven years ago. The body will be taken to New York for interment.

Proposed Washington Museum Sites Are Considered at Meeting.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission gave its approval yesterday to several pieces of District legislation that already have been sent to Congress and discussed several matters left over from previous meetings.

Sites for the proposed Washington Museum were considered, but no action was taken. The commission favored the acquisition of the Heurich-Smith tract at Columbia road and Nineteenth street for park purposes and approved the plans for the Municipal Center, for which 1932 appropriations are being sought.

The meeting is scheduled to continue through today and part of tomorrow. Today members of the body will take a motor trip over the Fort drive, which is proposed to link the several Civil War forts around the Capital.

Street Car Lines to Pay For Track Relocation

Expense of relocating the street railway tracks made necessary by changes incident to development of the Capitol and Union Station Plazas will be borne by the street railway companies, they told Vice President Curtis yesterday.

VETERAN, JOBLESS, ENDS LIFE WITH GAS

F. S. Hagar, 36, Suffered From Battle Wounds, Say Relatives.

WIFE MAKES DISCOVERY

Despondent because of ill health, and unable to find employment, Frank S. Hager, 36, a World War veteran, ended his life yesterday afternoon by inhaling gas, in a second-floor room of his home at 69 Q street southwest.

The suicide was discovered at about 5 o'clock by his wife, Mrs. Amelia Hager. Returning from the Bowen School, where she had gone for their son, William, 8, she detected the odor of gas and found Hager with a tube in his mouth. The tube extended to an open jet on the wall. She summoned a neighbor, John Greenwell, of 1517 Half street southwest. He called the Fire Rescue Squad, whose use of an inhalator proved futile, and Dr. J. B. Marbury, of Emergency Hospital, pronounced the man dead.

Relatives said Hager worked last summer as an independent ice dealer. In the World War he saw active service with Battery E of the Thirty-third Field Artillery. Wounded in action, he had suffered much, it was said. His application for a pension is still pending in the Veterans' Bureau.

Besides his wife and son, Hager leaves a brother, George Hager, of Los Angeles, and two sisters, Mrs. Kate Hutchens, whose husband is stationed with the Forty-ninth Air Squadron at Langley Field, Va., and Mrs. Tobie Beavers, of this city. Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt issued a certificate of death by suicide.

Denison Rum Case Plea Is Attacked

Rover Files Answer to Argument Case Should Go to Supreme Court.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw yesterday asked the District of Columbia Court of Appeals to disregard a plea of Edward E. Denison, representative of Illinois, that the Government's appeal in his case be referred directly to the United States Supreme Court.

Representative Denison was indicted on a liquor charge, but he attacked the indictment and the District Supreme Court upheld his demurrer. The Government appealed, and already the Court of Appeals has heard arguments from both sides. Tuesday, however, Denison's attorneys filed a petition attacking the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals, contending the Government should have gone directly to the supreme tribunal.

Mr. Rover and Mr. Burkinshaw, in their answer, deny this and contend that a direct appeal to the Supreme Court is permitted only when the constitutionality of a statute is attacked.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

DIVORCE PLEA CITES ABUSE AND NEGLECT

Prince Georges County Bus Driver Sued by Wife; Wed in 1924.

—Alleging that her husband nagged, beat and cursed her, Mrs. Agnes Porter has filed suit in Prince Georges County Circuit Court for limited divorce. The petition, filed through her lawyers, Albert M. Hassall and J. Wilson Ryon, names Gilbert L. Porter as defendant.

The couple was married in 1924 and have two children, Margaret, 5 years old, and Wilma, 5 months old. She also claims that the husband refuses to support the family, has provided little furniture for their house, and has not bought her any clothes of value since their marriage. She wants the custody of the children and alimony. She says that the man receives $2,000 a year as a bus driver.

Thurman Baldwin, of Greater Capitol Heights, was fined $100 in police court here yesterday for possession of equipment for the manufacture of liquor. While he admitted owning the building and knowing that the still was there, he said that the plant belonged to the man who rented the place from him. Earle Blackwell made the raid in this case.

Isaac Hull, of Capitol Heights, and N. H. Chrider, of Kenilworth, each were fined $25 on charges of disorderly conduct. Mabel Hess, who was arrested at the same time, forfeited $5 on a similar charge.

Thomas Talbott was brought into court on a nonsupport warrant sworn out by his wife, Naomi. The couple have three children, and Talbott was ordered to pay $6 a week toward their support.

Setting a record in the county, 80 children of preschool age were inoculated against typhoid fever yesterday in the clinic held in the Olive Street School in Hyattsville. The patients ranged in age from 6 months to 6 years.

A total of 130 have received the toxinantitoxin treatment in this community, where two deaths from typhoid have been reported in the last six weeks. At Laurel, 65 were treated at a recent clinic held in the colored school. As a preventive measure, the Schick test is being administered at the Mitchellville School.

Judge Alfred D. Bailey, of Bladensburg, will serve his third term as president of the Federation of Citizens Associations of Prince Georges County, members of the association decided at a recent meeting when Judge Bailey was reelected.

Other new officers will be: Vice president, George Fenwick, of Edmonston; secretary, G. W. Lambert, of Cheverly and treasurer, George W. Morgan, of Seabrook.

Citing the recent wave of petty burglaries in the Bladenaburg area as proof of the need for better police protection, the federation decided to write to the county commissioners and State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer asking their help in getting more policemen in the area.

A delegation representing Seabrook, Lanham, Laurel, Ardmore, Glenn Dale, Springfield, and Bowie, all of whom receive electric power from the Annapolis & Chesapeake Bay Power Co., will go before the public service commission to ask changes in the present rates and service. They will ask for a reduction of the present rate of 10 cents per kilowatt hour and a change from the present 25-cycle current to one of 60 cycles.

Temporary organization of the new Forestville, Md., fire department resulted in Richard K. Small being elected president. Other officers are W. Albert Randall, vice president; E. M. Suit, treasurer, and Donald N. Sansbury, secretary.

The site of the new firehouse has not yet been settled. A site has been offered by W. A. Randall, S. J. Randall, and David E. Randall, but some doubt as to the advisability of building on this plot has been expressed, due to the fact that it is some distance out of town.

On the other hand, it is pointed out, no other site has been offered and the place farther along the road would provide better protection to Brown's station, Redd's corner and the Mellwood area. Mr. Suit, W. Albert Randall, and Norman Collins were appointed a committee to try to get a site closer to the town itself.

Those who are charter members of the new company are: C. E. Entwisle, W. A. Randall, A. R. Schmidt, P. E. Young, P. E. Bradburn, J. A. Brashears, P. E. Nelson, E. M. Suit, C. R. Randall, D. N. Sansbury, W. Brashears, F. M. Greene, S. O. Tayman, S. J. Randall, S. H. Small, D. E. Randall, C. Walker, M. C. Wade, W. W. Randall, Stephen A. White, Walter Owens and Norman H. Collins.

A. C. Keegin has been elected president of the Holy Name Society of St. Jerome's parish in Hyattsville for the next year. J. S. Williams was selected vice president, and S. A. Kelly will be secretary. The treasurer chosen was C. L. Aiello. William M. Hall is the new marshal, and the Rev. Andrew J. Carey is spiritual director of the body. Joseph T. Keating and John Kelly are the delegates.

George A. G. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co.; Walter Johnson, manager of the Washington Baseball Team, and Nick Altrock will be the principal guests at the dinner to be given next Monday by members of the Exchange Club and the Chamber of Commerce. It will be held in the Masonic Hall in Hyattsville.

Mr. Wood will speak on the policies of his company in the distribution of gas through the Suburban Gas Light Co., whose property the Washington firm has recently bought. The famous pitcher will speak on teamwork and Altrock will be entertaining, as usual.

Charles G. Burton, Cottage City nurseryman, will decorate the hall, while L. L. Gray is in charge of arrangements for the dinner. B. W. Anspon, chairman of the entertainment committee, is also working on the affair. The meal will be served by members of Ruth Chapter, No. 7, Order of the Eastern Star.

Harry A. Boswell, chairman of the Hyattsville lighting committee, announced that work would be begun immediately on the lighting of the bridge over the railroad in that town. At the time the overpass was built, lighting fixtures were installed, but have never been used. Difficulty in connecting the circuit to any source of power was given as the reason for the darkness on the bridge.

TELEGRAMS PRAISE SPEECH OF RITCHIE

Stand on States' Rights and Prohibition Receive Acclaim.

TO MAKE APPOINTMENTS

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 15.—The flurry over his inauguration for a fourth term over, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie settled down to his usual routine today. Going to his desk in the executive offices he found himself confronted by a great mass of telegrams and letters of congratulation over his inaugural address which was carried to people all over the Nation by a hook-up of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The missives came from nearly every State in the Union. The greatest number perhaps were from States like New York, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, where the Maryland executive has many warm admirers. One of the first which the governor happened to open was from Joseph P. Tumulty, who was private secretary to President Woodrow Wilson.

Most of the messages commended the governor's stand on prohibition and State's rights and told of the prominent display given his speech by newspapers in both large and small cities. In practically all of the telegrams, the writers indicated that Gov. Ritchie had been interpreted as a bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, the same as it had been received by newspapers throughout the Eastern area of the country.

Concerning the inaugural ceremonies, the governor was told by Frank A. Furst, of Baltimore City, 85-year-old leader of Maryland Democracy, that the event ranked with the most successful of those he had witnessed over a long period, the first of which was back in 1868 when Gov. Bowie went into office as the first Democrat elected to head the State government.

The governor will now turn his attention to the busy times that lie ahead for the General Assembly, and mapping out plans for the furtherance of his legislative program, outlined in his message to the legislators ten days ago, and consideration of the various appointments he will have to make.

Bobby Jones Tries Out on The Radio.

(Robert Tyre Jones, greatest golfer of all time, has signed up to give a series of radio talks under the auspices of a national advertiser."—News item.)

BOBBY (getting his first instructions): Now just how do I do it?

Studio Attendant: Just face the microphone and speak distinctly.

Bobby: Like this?

Attendant: No. Your stance is wrong for the best results * * * Feet a little closer together * * * with the mike off the left heel * * * Bring the right foot back a little * * * That's right.

Bobby: I've never been so nervous in my life.

Attendant: Just relax, Mr. Jones. You're all stiffened up.

Bobby: Now do I have to shout or just talk in my natural voice?

Attendant: Just be natural. That'll get distance as well as accuracy * * * Remember, you can't get results as a radio talker if you press * * * Just be free and easy * * * Now let me hear you.

Bobby (into the mike): Good evening, ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience * * *

Attendant: No! No! No! You're too tense. Loosen up and try again.

Bobby: Good evening, folks. This is a great honor to appear here tonight and * * * Attendant: Wait a minute! * * * That's much better, but your timing is all wrong. You're getting too much body into it. Remember you've gotta have a smooth rhythmic flow of motion * * * And don't hurry.

Bobby (trying again): Hello, friends of the radio world. In making my appearance here * * *

Attendant: That's much better, but you're lifting your shoulder.

Bobby: Am I?

Attendant: Yes. Don't forget that the head stays perfectly still. Now once more * * * and don't hurry the back swing * * * Relax! * * * Loosen up!

Bobby: Hello ev'rybody! * * * Ha! Ha! Ha! * * * Well, it surely seems good, folks, to be here on the air talkin' to all you good people out there * * *

Attendant (enthusiastically): Attaboy! * * * Now you've got it! * * * Just a free, easy swing and no pressing, no stiffness!

A MATTER OF TASTE.

A PITTSBURGH judge holds that it is not obligatory for a golfer to yell "Fore". But after you've hit a man it's still considered permissible.

The United States Golf Association has barred a type of club known as the sandwedge, which came into great popularity last year. This will mean that a lot of golfers will again take up their summer residence in a sand trap.

"If there is no hell," asks T. A. S., "then where has all the business gone?"

VERY PROBABLE.

Bobby Jones appears on the air this week in a program advertising an antiseptic mouthwash and it may develop, after all, that what causes so many people to miss those one-foot putts is halitosis.

TURKEY has barred American films as vicious and degrading. The silly Turks possibly have the old-fashioned idea that a man should be able to sit through a picture and retain his self-respect.

Two Vessels Signal Need in Distress

Coast Guard Cutters Leave for Schooners; One Not Identified.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 15 (A.P.).—News of two ships in distress was received today at Coast Guard headquarters. Both ships were four-masted schooners, one of them Chiquimula, of San Juan, Porto Rico, the other an unidentified vessel in distress off Thimble Shoal, near Cape Hatteras.

The Coast Guard cutters Mendota and Carrabasett were notified of the unidentified schooner's signals, which did not disclose the nature of the trouble. The Mendota was on cruise and the Carrabasett was at Cape Lookout, about 100 miles from Thimble Shoals, headquarters said, and whichever could best take care of the situation would do so.

The Chiquimula stern post suffered damage, according to a dispatch from the Florida East Coast patrol, and the Coast Guard patrol boat 202 was standing by her and the Coast Guard cutter Perry is leaving Fort Everglades to assist.

The Chiquimula's position placed her about 15 miles east of Daytona Beach.

FOLK FEEL "SLIGHT" TO FREDERICKSBURG

City of Washington's Boyhood Not Represented on 1932 Commission.

DEPLORED BY POLLARD

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 14.—The city where George Washington spent his boyhood, where originated the legends of the cherry tree and wild colts, dear to childish fancy; where he was educated and where his mother lies buried, will not be represented on the 1932 bicentennial commission, which is to prepare celebrations for the 200th anniversary of the first President's birth.

Deploring the omission from the commission of persons from Fredericksburg, City Manager L. J. Houston, jr., recently sent a letter to Gov. Pollard, asking that he name a representative from this city. The Governor replied:

"I agree with you that Fredericksburg ought to be represented and regret that I have no power to increase the membership."

The commission the Governor's letter said was appointed in Byrd's term of office, the membership being fixed by law.

Charles E. Stuart, member of the House of Delegates from Westmoreland County, where Washington was born, and State Senator R. O. Norris, of Richmond County, are the only men from this general section on the commission.

Fredericksburg, Mr. Houston told Gov. Pollard, being one of America's most historic cities and the place where the President's "character was molded," should, because of its association with the past and particularly with Washington's formative years, be represented.

COMMITTEE ADOPTS SANKEY INDIAN PLAN

Framework of Government Goes to Plenary Session of Conference Today.

AMNESTY RUMOR STIRS

London, Jan. 15 (A.P.).—The Indian round-table conference in committee today adopted the report of Lord Chancellor Sankey outlining the framework of India's future federal government.

The plan will go before a full plenary session of the conference which may commence tomorrow and will conclue on Monday morning. Premier Ramsay MacDonald will announce the government's policy as the curtain falls.

Tonight a flurry was created in conference circles by the report that the Maharaja of Bikaner, powerful Indian potenate and life-supporter of the British crown, had proposed the liberation of all political prisoners in British India, including Mahatma Gandhi, the extremist leader. These number in the neighborhood of 50,000.

Great significance was attached by delegate a to the proposal, for the Maharaja has long been known as a trusted adviser of the government on Indian affairs and one whose advice has always been given wide attention.

The report on self-government was passed with individual reservations. Lord Reading, the liberal spokesman, dealth at length with the proposed financial safeguards, declaring their object was not to retain British control of Indian finances but to preserve the financial stability and credit of India so that when the change in government took place the nation's credit would not suffer.
